POLITICAL NOTES.

—The New York Prohibitionists have fixed upon June 22d and 23d, and Syracuse as the time and place for their convention to nominate a State ticket.

—The Government of Canada, which has decided to change the Dominion flag and seal, should bow to the inevitable and discount the future by adopting ours.

—Our prophet has a decided impression that, if Tweed is released from prison, he will be chosen to the New York Legislature as a Democratic martyr, at the next ensuing election.

—We wish those foreign ecclesiastics who lately came hither from Rome would give McCloskey his red hat and be done with it. We are tired of seeing notices of it in the papers every day.

—The Democrats of Toledo, at the late election, polled seven more votes than they did in the October election, while the Republicans polled 794 more. That accounts for the Republican victory there.

—Senator Gordon says it is too early to put a Confederate soldier upon the Democratic National ticket. He might have added that it is unnecessary, also, as the Northern Democrats are more willing to do dirty work than even a Confederate would be.

—Democratic ideas and principles are flourishing finely down in Texas. Freedmen's school houses are being burned down and the teachers warned away with threats of death unless the order is complied with. Masks, hemp nooses and black-snake whips are, under its present regime, the symbols of Texan civilization.

—The Liberal Republican organs naturally fall in behind Tweed and recognize his superiority as a leader. The Philadelphia Times thinks he ought to be released from prison, and extends to him its genuine sympathy. Tweed was, it is true, a great thief; but then he was a Democrat, and no Democratic thief should be subjected to punishment.

—Hon. Julian C. Burrows, of Michigan, one of the rising men of the Republican party, and a very eloquent speaker, has consented to be present at the Republican State Convention at Lancaster, on the 26th of May, and will address a public meeting there, that evening. Mr. Burrows is a native Pennsylvanian, having been born at North East, Erie county, and represents the Kalamazoo district in Congress.

—The Ravenna Democrat ought to know. It speaks thus of the late Democratic Legislature of Ohio:

"The present Legislature will stand in history, so far as its Democratic majority is concerned, as incompetent, trifling, unpatriotic, intensely, blindly partisan, reckless, uncrupulous, and corrupt."

And yet, in the course of a few weeks, this Ravenna Democrat will be as busy as a bee in trying to elect just such another body as that which it here denounces. See if it does not.

—"Texas steers" is what the Democrats call the "Independents" in Illinois. The latter were driven, easily enough, into the Democratic cattle-yard, and ran with the drove as long as affairs moved along smoothly; but as soon as any one of them took a scare at something unusual, the drove was scattered in the twinkling of an eye. The Democrats want a more tractable kind of cattle than this, and the "Texas steers" are not to blame for getting scared in the company they were forced to keep. Nothing but a natural born Democrat can stand that kind of association long.

——How is it about "Beautiful Spring" now?

THE members of the Republican Executive Committee of Centre county will meet in Bellefonte, on Tuesday, April 27, at two o'clock P. M., for the purpose of electing two representative delegates, and to elect senatorial conferrees, to meet the senatorial conferrees from Clinton and Clearfield counties in Bellefonte, on Thursday, May 6, to elect a senatorial delegate, who, with the representative delegates, will attend the Republican State Convention at Lancaster, on Wednesday, the 26th day of May, to nominate one person for Governor and one person for State Treasurer. A full attendance is desired.

LANSBURY'S CASE AGAIN.

What a Bellefonte Paper Thinks About It—The Milk in its Cocoanut.

We copy the following from the Pittsburgh Dispatch. Every one who knows Meek or the Watchman knows that its sympathies are all with the "lost cause" and always have been. It will stop at nothing when there is a chance to traduce the honor and good name of a Republic. It is enough for that paper to know that Butler was a Union soldier. Had he been a rebel soldier that paper would have had no crocodile tears to shed over his fate, whatever that might be; it loses no opportunity to vilify the names of our patriot dead, and of our living heroes, in the smallness of its narrow, contracted ideas, its editors seem to think there is no cognomination that can be applied to them so odious as to compare them to a negro and say "the nigger is the decenter man of the two." As to the Lansbury case we do not think the people of Centre county have any sympathy for murderers; we are sure the verdict of the people will be, let justice be done to Lansbury. But here is what the Dispatch has to say:

"The Bellefonte Watchman, a Democratic organ of Centre county, edited by a strong partisan named P. Gray Meek, says of Lansbury, who is in jail on a charge of shooting Butler:

'Butler, the Provost Marshal who was shot by Lansbury ten years ago, was one of those sneaking scoundrels who went about over the country making arrests for $30 a head, and receiving his blood-money from the government. Only a short time before Butler was killed by Lansbury, he shot a woman named Mrs. Smith, in Jefferson county, through the neck, for refusing to tell him where her husband was. The poor woman was instantly killed, and Butler was allowed to go unpunished. He broke into Lansbury's house like a thief, for the purpose of dragging him away as he had dragged others, but he failed to accomplish his object. Lansbury felt that his house was his castle, and he was not afraid to defend it. Butler was shot and killed. And now we hope that an impartial court will acquit Lansbury, in view of the fact that he only executed a just vengeance upon the murderer of an innocent woman, which the law had failed to do.'

The foregoing is pronounced by those familiar with the facts of the tragedy to be utterly false. Instead of Butler figuring as a "sneaking scoundrel," he was a Union soldier who had rendered good service to his country and been promoted for bravery. Wounded at South Mountoin and subsequently disabled temporarily by the horrid regime of Libby prison, he was honorably discharged from active service, and returned to his home in Pennsylvania where he was made a Deputy Provost Marshal of the Nineteenth Congressional District and duly commissioned as such. It was while operating in this capacity that he was shot down. As for the statement that he once shot a woman in the neck while looking for her husband, it is declared an entire falsehood, without a shadow of testimony to support it.

The Clearfield and Centre county papers are all bitterly agitated about the arrest of Lansbury. Perhaps this is attributable to the fact that they are published in strongly Democratic districts, and that they sympathized with the resistance to the draft which Lansbury was engaged in when he shot Butler. Meek, himself, the editor of the Watchman, from which the above extract is quoted, was arrested and indicted in the jurisdiction of the United States Court of Western Pennsylvania for counseling resistance to the draft. His case was No. 18, May term, '65. After having been continued for several terms, a nolle pros. was finally entered when the war terminated, and the country was feeling so good that it thought it could be merciful to treason. Perhaps this little narrative will account for the Bellefonte Watchman's very peculiar view of Lansbury's case and for its strong sympathy for the prisoner."

A NEW CHURCH EDIFICE.

The Methodists of Bellefonte have a laudable ambition to erect a new church edifice. The proposed site of the new building is to be on a lot of ground situate on Spring street near, but on the opposite side of the street from the Presbyterian church; it is to cost twelve thousand dollars, built of stone and will be an imposing and beautiful ornament to our town. We wish our Methodist brethren abundant success in this new enterprise, and it seems to us that it is a matter that should deeply interest every one of every denomination or of no denomination, who feels an interest in the growth and beauty of our town. Nothing speaks so well for a place as to find their beautiful churches dedicated to the service of the only living and true God.

We are also gratified to note this new movement from the fact that we believe that it will have a tendency to increase the religious interest among the people, will prompt them to renewed zeal in the cause. Working Christians are always better Christians because of the work and self-denial which they practice for the cause they profess to love. Therefore all of us, whether we have emblazoned upon our banner one name or another, should give to our brethren every encouragement within our power; and we have no doubt that every one who does will be paid back an hundred fold. We think that, at least where there is so little difference in creeds as exist here in Bellefonte, the principle of benevolence and charity should be manifest among the brethren of the different denominations. The infinitely benevolent God is necessarily infinitely happy. His intelligent, moral offspring, in proportion as they partake of the divine nature, and feel and act accordingly, are blest and happy. The people of Bellefonte, so like in faith, who cherish the same joyous hope, send up to heaven similar aspirations and hold themselves responsible to the same precept of universal justice, are brethren; and though they have organized themselves into separate societies and churches, they should dwell together, and co-operate in every good word and work in the unity of the spirit and the bonds of peace. What are these different denominations but different members of the same family, the branch and members of which, as brethren and friends, should endeavor to promote the interest and prosperity of all? Several families may each act for its own good, without infringing upon the rights or abridging in the least the privileges of others of the same cluster. So should the different denominations pursue an honorable, generous course, which, whilst it would secure the rights and interests of each, would subserve and promote the welfare and prosperity of the whole. It is upon this principle that we do unto others as we would they should do unto us. We should never forget that notwithstanding our differences of opinion, habits, and religious associations, we are, nevertheless, the offspring of the same Divine Parent in heaven,—alike dependent on him for life, the bounties of Providence, and the riches of grace and salvation. It would seem, from the language of the Scriptures, that all christians might so unite as to render all sensuousness, and even all unkindness of feeling or the feeling that we cannot or will not assist in any laudable work or enterprise, to rear a church or pay a preacher, unknown and impossible among its professors of all denominations, where there is any affinity whatever. The encouraging declaration is,—Till we all come in the unity of the Faith, and to the knowledge of the son of God, unto a perfect man; unto the measure of the stature of the fullness of Christ." Here is no room for wide irreconcilable divisions or want of charity among the followers of the Lamb. When the middle walls of partition, reared by human hands and clerical ingenuity, shall have been demolished, all will be one in Christ Jesus. It is in this spirit of charity that we ask the people of all denominations to treat this new movement of our Methodist brethren; it is a necessity to them; it is a laudable enterprise; it will be a beautiful improvement to the town; it will increase the religious interest among the people, and therefore help all denominations and should be encouraged by all.

LEXINGTON AND CONCORD 1775, 1875.

Last Monday, April 19, was the centennial anniversary of an important event in American history. On that day one hundred years ago, a few of the gallant yeomanry of the old Bay State, hastily brought together from the fields and work shops, undisciplined and unskilled in the art of war, attacked a regiment of British regulars, put them to flight and drove them inside their intrenched camp in the city of Boston. This event inaugurated the war for independence, and must therefore be ranked as one of the most important battles of the world.

The causes which led to the battle of Lexington, may be briefly stated as follows: The oppression which had been heaped upon the colonists by the misgoverned mother country, had long been borne and the former had become fully determined to vindicate their rights. A Continental Congress had been held the year previous, when all local jealousies were laid aside, and a union formed for common defense of all the states. Among the acts of this Congress, was one which designated several places as depots for military, stores, and Concord, Mass., was selected for New Eng. It was the county seat of Middlesex county, and the inhabitants of that and adjoining towns, were known to be thoroughly patriotic and fully alive to the importance of the issue. On account of the rebellious spirit manifested by the colonists, in the destruction of the tea in Boston harbor the year previous, and in the acts of Congress, additional troops had been sent to Boston, and ten entire regiments of the flower of the British army were encamped in that city. It was believed that the moral effect of this force would be to overawe the colonists and prevent any rebellious acts, and the troops in their camps in the New England metropolis were anticipating a pleasant time. It was on account of its distance from Boston as well as for reasons which we have already stated, that Concord was selected as a place of deposit for military stores. This would enable the patriots, should an attempt be made by the soldiers to seize them, to have timely notice and rally to protect them. These munitions of war were carefully guarded night and day, and when, at length General Gage, who commanded the British troops in Boston, determined to send a regiment to capture and destroy them, a collision became inevitable. The troops were landed at East Cambridge, known at that time by the name of Cragy's Point, on the night of the 18th, and quietly took up the line of march for Concord. Although these operations were conducted with the greatest secrecy, their designs and movements could not long be kept concealed from the patriots. The midnight ride of Paul Revere across the country, and the patriotic deeds of Darr, Prescott and others, have been celebrated in song and story. Everywhere the minute men were aroused from their slumbers and informed of the approach of the British troops. The result of the expedition is well known to every school boy in the land, and we will pursue the narrative no further. Fifty years after this gallant affair, a celebration was held, and the corner stone of a monument was laid, with imposing ceremonies. The oration was by Edward Everett, the greatest orator that ever lived, who was there in the freshness of his eloquence and intellectual power. Ten years afterwards, that is, in 1835, the monument was erected. It was a plain shaft with an appropriate inscription. The exercises of last Monday were arranged on a scale worthy of the occasion, and were held at both places, Concord and Lexington. At the former place the oration was delivered by George William Curtis, and a poem by James Russell Lowell. An original hymn written by Longfellow, was sung by the vast throng assembled there with marked effect, awakening anew a feeling of patriotism and love for the dear old flag in every heart; but the great event of the day was the unveiling of French's bronze statue of the minute man, which was manufactured at the Ames works in Chicopee, Mass., and is thus described by the Springfield Republican:

"The statue is, of course, of heroic measure; somewhat more than seven feet in height, generously proportioned, and is to be elevated upon a fine pedestal of granite. It represents a young man turning, at the hurrying call of the messenger, from his labors in the field, and instantly ready for duty. His left hand rests a moment on a handle of his abandoned plough, across whose upper brace his coat is flung; his right hand grasps the old flint-lock musket; he rests his left foot, while his right is just leaving the ground behind—the whole attitude indicating a moment's pause, as if to listen. The figure is attired in the traditional Continental costume, and will preserve its details for future ages. It is no ideal face, no countenance or form that would be at home in other countries, but a thorough Yankee, that Mr. French has given to immortality. The features are strongly marked, and bear the energy, the self-command, the ready shrewdness, the immediate decision, and, above all, the air of freedom, that belong to the New England face. The frame is stalwart, the shoulders squarely held, the muscles of the bared forearms—the one that leans strongly on the plough, the one that strongly grasps the musket—are tense and unencumbered by flabby flesh; the great veins stand knotted on the strenuous hands. The man is alive from head to foot, and, indeed, we know not where there is better represented the momentary pause of vigorous action than in this noble statue.'

At Lexington, the exercises were held in a large pavilion tent on the common (a plat of ground in the centre of the town beautifully ornamented with trees, and enclosed with a beautiful fence, to be used for such occasions as the present, a play ground for the young people, and a training field for soldiers.) Statues of Samuel Adams and John Hancock were unvailed, and an oration by Richard H. Dana, Jr., an original hymn by the poet Whittier, was sung by the audience.

One hundred years have rolled away since the stirring events, which on Monday last were appropriately noticed, transpired, and it has been a century of wonderful progress to America, and the world. From a small colony, we have grown to be a great nation, taken high rank among the great powers of the earth. The centennial of last Monday, is a fitting forerunner of the great centennial which is to come, at Philadelphia in 1876, and others which will be celebrated within the next two years, will naturally lead the American mind back to the days of simple habits, when statesmen were inspired by patriotism and labored for the public welfare, rather than for the gratification of their selfish desires, and let us hope they may be productive of good.

Mr. Bates is favorably known to the business community of Philadelphia as an active, prompt and courteous gentleman.

——Among the river casualties we notice that uncle Billy Hensler, as he was called, who lived at Westport, Clinton County, was drowned while passing through the schute at Queens Run dam, lately.

CHRIST AND THE CHILDREN.

"The Master has come over Jordan."
Said Hannah, the Mother, one day;
"Is healing the people who throng him,
With a touch of the finger they say.

"And now I shall carry the children,
Little Rachel, and Samuel, and John—
I shall carry the baby Esther—
For the Lord to look upon."

The father looked at her kindly,
But he shook his head and smiled;
"Now who but a doting mother
Would think of a thing so wild?

"If the children were tortured by demons,
Or dying of fever, twere well,
Or had they a taint of the leper,
Like many in Israel."

"Nay, do not hinder me, Nathan,
If I feel such a burden of care,
If I carry it to the Master,
Perhaps I shall leave it there.

"If he lay his hand on the children
My heart will be lighter I know
For a blessing for ever and ever
Will follow them as they go."

So over the hills of Judea,
Along the vine-rows green,
With Esther asleep on her bosom,
And Rachel her brothers between.

'Mong the people who hung on his teaching,
Or waited his touch or word,
Through the rows of proud Pharisees listening,
She pressed to the feet of the Lord.

'Now, why should'st thou hinder the Master,
Said Peter, "with children like these?
Seest not how from morning till evening
He teacheth and healeth disease?"

Then, Christ said, "Forbid not the children:
Permit them to come unto me,"
And he took in his arms little Esther,
And Rachel she sat on his knee.

And the heavy heart of the mother
Was lifed all earth-care above,
As he laid his hand on the brothers,
And blessed them with tenderest love.

And he said of the babe on his bosom,
"Of such is the kingdom of heaven,"
And strength for all beauty and trial
That hour to her spirit was given.

PLATONIC.

BY WILLIAM B. TERRETT.

I had sworn to be a bachelor, she had sworn to be a maid,
For we quite agreed in doubting whether matrimony paid;
Besides we had our higher love—fair science ruled my heart,
And she said her young affections were all wound up in art.

So we laughed at those wise men who say that friendship cannot live
'Twixt man and woman, unless each has somemore to give;
We would be friends, and friends as true as e'er were man and man—
I'd be a second David, and she Miss Jonathan.

We scorned all sentimental trash—vows, kisses, tears, and sighs;
High friendship, such as ours, might well such childish arts despise;
We liked each other, that was all, quite all there was to say,
So we just shook hands upon it, in a business sort of way.

We shared our secrets and our joys, together hoped and feared,
With common purpose sought the goal that young Ambition reared;
We dreamed together of the days, the dream-bright days to come;
We were strictly confidential, and we called each other "chum."

And many a day we wandered together o'er the hills,
I seeking bugs and butterflies, and she the ruined mills,
And rustic bridges, and the like, that picture-makers prize,
To run in with their waterfalls, and groves, and summer skies.

And many a quiet evening, in hours of full release,
We floated down the river, or loafed beneath the trees,
And talked in long gradation from the poets to the weather,
While the western skies and my cigar burned slowly out together.

Yet through it all no whispered word, no tell-tale glance or sigh.
Told aught of warmer sentiment than friendly sympathy,
We talked of love as coolly as we talked of Nebulæ,
And thought no more of being one than we did of being three.

* * * * * * * *

"Well, good-bye, chum!" I took her hand, for the time had come to go—
My going meant our parting, when to meet we did not know;
I had lingered long, and said farewell with a very heavy heart,
For although we were but friends, 'tis hard for honest friends to part.

"Good-bye, old fellow! don't forget your friends beyond the sea,
And some day, when you've lots of time drop a line or two to me."
The word came lightly, gaily, but a great sob just behind,
Welled upward with a story of quite a different kind.

And then she raised her eyes to mine—great liquid eyes of blue,
Filled to the brim and running o'er, with violet cups of dew;
One long, long glance, and then I did, what I never did before—
Perhaps the tears meant friendship, but I'm sure the kiss meant more.

Our Story Teller.

MARK SHIPLEY'S ATONEMENT.

"Halloh, Shipley! good evening, old fellow! We've stopped in to carry you off with us. You know you promised long ago to take a look in at Maason's, and we won't let you off. So put on your hat and come along.

Mark shook his head: "You must excuse me. It was, as you say, long ago when I made that promise, and my opinions have changed somewhat; moreover Maason's was not then the regular gambling house it is now. Be generous and give me back my promise, boys. I don't want it said that I ever entered such a place."

For reply, his friends burst into uproarious laughter.

After some remonstrance, Mark suffered himself to be persuaded to accompany his friends, feeling in honor bound to do so, since they would not release him from his promise, for it had always been his pride that his word, once passed, had never been broken.

Maason's was a so-called private gambling-house, and open only to the upper classes. Several gentlemen were gathered about one of the numerous tables, deeply absorbed in the game of "rouge-et-noir."

Our three friends looked on for a while in silence, and then Bourton and Hawer drew nearer, and each staked a small sum. They won, and again risked a larger sum—again fortune favored them; and then—alas for human nature and human resolution!—Mark Shipley, carried away by the excitement of the moment, forgot the lesson of his father's past, and threw down upon the table a golden coin.

"Hurrah, Shipley!" cried Burton.

"Well done! You are a true man, for all your squeamishness. You see these things don't look so bad when you are right close to them. The "rouge-et-noir" tables are very tasty—not at all repulsive."

But Mark already regretted his impulsive act. "Ah, Burton," he said, "there is the whole trouble in a nutshell. It is because gambling looks so harmless at first that so many noble-hearted fellows are ruined by it."

This he spoke in all earnestness; and yet a few moments later, when his gold returned to him doubled in amount, he staked it again; and yet again it came back to him, four times the amount it first started—forty dollars instead of ten.

"Try it again, Shipley?" cried Hawer. "Down with it on the "noir."

"No, on the "rouge;" and Mark, with flashing eyes and flushed cheeks, laid down his forty dollars on the spot referred to. Again he won, and eighty dollars were handed him by the banker—a clear gain of seventy.

"What a splendid run of luck, Shipley!" cried Burton. "Double, triple the amount; you're sure to win!"

Mark hesitated, but the reckless fascination of the game was in the ascendant and he risked the larger sum suggested by his friend, placing it this time on the "inverse," and then he waited with breathless eagerness for the result. It was against him; but so far from checking his wild career, it seemed rather to incite him to further risks.

"Two hundred dollars on the "noir!" A moment's suspense, and again he lost.

As this result was announced Mark's face grew pale, and with a shock he awakened to a full appreciation, not only of the debt he had incurred, but of the sin he had committed—of the self imposed vow he had broken. Faint and sick at heart, he gave his note for the amount due Maason, and then bidding his friends a brief good-night, hastened homeward.

As may be readily imagined, his reflections were far from pleasant. Aside from the reproaches of his conscience, the sum he had lost was by no means an inconsiderable one, and his salary as private secretary to a wealthy banker (no other than his intended father-in-law) could ill withstand this heavy draft upon it. Moreover his next quarterly payment would not be due for a month to come, and he had but very little money on hand.

"If Maason will only wait till this month is out," he thought, "I can weather the storm I have brought on myself, and then"—he raised his hand solemnly toward heaven—"I will never again enter a gambling-house or engage in any game of chance, so help me God!"

"If Maason will wait," Mark had said to himself, but Maason would not wait. No promise, no security, would satisfy this man, who, destitute of honor himself, could not believe of its existence in others. Money in good solid coin—this alone would content him. Day after day he intruded himself into young Shipley's apartments; and at length one day grew so violent that Mark, to get rid of him for the time, told him to come in to-morrow, and he would endeavor, by all possible means, to have the money ready for him.

"Very well, sir" said the man as he turned toward the door, "I'll come to-morrow, as you say; but if that money is not forthcoming, I will go straight to Mr. Morton, and tell him what a nice son-in-law he is going to have. You know him as well as I do, and I am more mistaken than I ever was in my life if he don't cut you adrift for this business the moment he hears of it, so you'd better get the money ready and keep it all from him."

This was early in the morning, and soon after, Mark walked down to the bank, thinking it all over with a sinking heart. He could not raise the sum required. Burton and Hawar were unable to lend it, and to no other friends could he apply.

So, on the morrow, all would be over, and his brief, bright dream of love at an end, and in its place sorrow and disgrace.

He had brought it all on himself, too, and this knowledge made his thoughts all the more bitter, for he felt that he deserved the misfortunes which were thronging about him—he was not worthy to call sweet Jennie Morton by the sacred name of wife.

The day wore on; and, as the hour for closing the bank drew near, Mr. Morton rose from his chair to depart, but at the office door he suddenly paused.

"I had nearly, forgotten, Mark. Just look in my desk—here is the key—and you will find four hundred dollars in cash that I wish you would lock up in my private vault. You will be up this evening, of course? Jennie expects you; so good-bye for the present."

Left alone, Mark opened the banker's desk and gazed intently on the coarse bag which contained the gold. His cheeks grew deathly white, and his frame shook like an aspen leaf. He put forth his hand and touched the coin, then drew back as though stung by a scorpion. Once more he advanced his hand, and this time he clutched the bag; then taking down his overcoat from the nail upon which it hung, he threw it over his arm in such a manner as to conceal the gold, the latter being too heavy to place in his pocket, and hurriedly left the bank.

"This will save me," he muttered; and before Mr. Morton can miss it I shall have replaced it from my salary—only one week to wait for it now. Oh how low I have fallen—a gambler and a thief—I, Mark Shipley!"

"Well, sir," said Maason, "here I am. Can you say the same of the money you owe me?"

"Here it is," replied Mark, hoarsely. "Count it, to make sure it is right, and then begone, and never dare to cross my threshold again."

"Not unless you cross mine, never fear. Well, it's all right, sir. There is your receipt, that I've carried in my pocket these three weeks. I'm thankful to you at last."

Maason moved toward the door with a sneering laugh; and Mark, excited beyond control, advanced toward him with uplifted hand, a silent threat that was not lost on its object, who quickly vanished.

It was not quite time to go to the bank and Mark spent the interval in walking up and down his room. At length he threw himself into a chair and bent his head upon his hands. Directly he looked up with a brighter glance in his eyes, a firmer expression on his face.

"I will do it!" he exclaimed. "Irresolution has been my bane through life; but for that I should never have fallen thus low. Oh, Jennie, my beloved, Heaven grant that you care not for me as I had once hoped and believed! I would fain that this sorrow should fall upon me alone, who have deserved it all."

He walked rapidly to the bank, and entered Mr. Morton's private office, found that gentleman seated at his desk. Pressing his hand over his fast throbbing heart, Mark advanced, and stood in silence until his employer looked up.

"Why, Mark, you look ill!" he exclaimed. "What is the matter? Sit down, sit down!"

"I am ill, sir," answered the young man, slowly—"ill in mind. I have committed a great sin, and have come to you to confess it."

And then, in brief, clear words, he told it all—his first false step and its consequences, his temptation and his fall.

Mr. Morton listened in silence. He was a kind-hearted, upright man; and while his sense of honor was shocked at the story of Mark's wrong-doing, his heart recognized the inherent nobleness in the young man's character which had led him to confess his crime. He longed to speak to him words of comfort, but nevertheless he deemed it best that he should suffer yet a while longer, in order that the remembrance of those dark hours of sorrow and humiliation might never fade away.

"Mark," he said, "I need not say how shocked and grieved I am—you know all that. You have sinned; but you know as well as I that in all probability I should never have discovered the absence of the money. For this reason I shall retain you in your position here. I trust you still, you see. But, Mark, tell me on your sacred honor and consience, do you think I would do right to confide the happiness of my child to one who has sinned as you have? Are you worthy of her?

He waited for an answer, and it came in low, gaspings tones:

"No, sir, I am all unworthy. You would do wrong to give her to me now. I will not seek her—you may trust me for that. Tell her, yes, tell her what I have done, and then she will cease to love me, and not suffer as I shall. Would I might die; but I must live to work out my atonement.

"Be it so, Mark," answered Mr. Morton, and then he went hastily out from the office that the young man might not see the tears in his eyes. But Mark could not have seen them had he stayed, because of the scalding drops which blinded his own sight.

Time passed on. Two months had gone by, and Mark, a wiser and a nobler man, was steadily working out his atonement. Not once had he looked upon her who had so nearly been his bride, nor had her name once been mentioned between him and her father.

The bank closed at three o'clock, its officers and clerks having generally all departed at four; and then, from this latter period until five o'clock—the hour of the watchman's arrival—the building was entirely deserted. Mark had had some extra work to do, and not having completed it when his friends left the bank, remained in Mr. Morton's office for that purpose.

His pen ran steadily over the paper before him, but suddenly he laid it down and bent his head as if to listen. His quick ear had caught the sound of stealthy footsteps in the passage leading to the office in which he sat. A moment's attention convinced him that he was not mistaken. The steps paused at the door, and a man's voice exclaimed:

"Come, hurry along, Bill; this job's got to be done quick. The watchman'll be here before long, and we'll find ourselves in a pretty muss if we're not off first. There's a door in this here office leading to the vaults, and I've got keys that'll open all ahead of us. These here skeletons are precious nice things."

Quick as lightning Mark comprehended it all. These men had concealed themselves in the bank to await the departure of its officers, and now were prepared to break into the vaults.

Grasping the high stool on which he ordinarily sat, Mark glided across the room and stationed himself at one side of the office door. Scarcely had he done so when it was opened, and the foremost burglar entered, to receive a heavy blow from the stool, which sent him reeling back into the passage-way.

His astonished comrades looked cautiously in through the open door.

"Hurrah! only one man! We'll soon finish him. Come on, down with him!"

Five men rushed into the apartment, but Mark had been too quick for them. With a sudden bound he crossed the room, and placed his back against the iron door opening into the passage to the vaults below.

Fast and furious were the blows aimed at him, but the long-legged stool proved an admirable weapon of defence, not alone repelling the attacks of his assailants, but in laying one of them insensible on the floor.

"Hang it, we'll have to use powder after all, and risk the noise," exclaimed one of the robbers; and as he spoke he presented a pistol at Mark and fired.

The stool dropped with a crash from the latter's powerless hands, and he fell heavily upon the floor, the blood flowing from a wound in his side. The robbers pushed him aside, and he saw one of their number draw a bunch of skeleton keys from his pocket and fit one to the door. Then all grew dim before him, and he knew no more until he opened his eyes to find himself in a darkened room.

"Where am I?" he asked, and the sound of his voice startled him, so weak and low was it.

No answer was made him, but a slight, graceful figure started up from his side and sped from the room. A moment later Mr. Morton entered and stood at the bedside. Mark repeated his question.

"You are in my house, my dear boy," was the reply. "You have been very ill for weeks, and must not attempt to talk, though you are better now. Hush, not a word."

The young man was too weak to oppose the mandate, so he closed his eyes and soon sank into a peaceful slumber.

A few days subsequently, when Mark was stronger, Mr. Morton told him how the watchman, entering the bank in company with a friend, had been startled by a pistol shot, and hastening in the direction of the sound, had discovered the robbers in the act of opening the iron door which Mark had so ably defended. The men had fled, all save one, who lay on the floor insensible. Him they gave into the charge of a policeman whom they summoned; and he had since recovered and turned State's evidence, so that the whole party had been captured.

As for Mark, they had thought him dead at first, but Mr. Morton, sent for in all haste, had conveyed him to his own house, and called his wavering spirit back to life again.

Mark's eyes brightened as he heard his story.

"Then the robbers got nothing?" he asked.

"Not a dollar, thinks to your bravery."

"Thank Heaven for that! I have atoned my sin."

"You have, indeed, my dear boy," was the earnest reply; "and here is your reward. Take it, for now you are worthy of it."

He drew his blushing daughter from behind the curtains which had up to this moment concealed her from Mark's view, and placed her hand in the thin, emaciated one of her lover.

"I told her all, Mark, but she never faltered in her love. Take her; you are worthy of each other. You have each passed through the furnace of affliction, and have come forth purer and nobler."

A sweet, happy smile played over the young man's wasted features as he clasped the hand of her he loved in his own.

"Thank Heaven!" he murmured; "my atonement is in truth accepted, for man has forgiven my sin, and God is yet more forgiving than he. I have found peace again once more."

And Mark was right, as his subsequent life of joy, prosperity and usefulness amply testified.

A nickname will not only outliv a man, but outlast even his tombstun.

A Small, Plain Woman on Kissing and Chasity.

Miss Jane Gray Swisshelm writes as follows in the Chicago Tribune:

"We can all see the impropriety of verbal declarations of passion in such cases, and how much more unsafe any act bearing such interpretation. Wherever men and women meet in friendly or business relations, one or both must be constantly mindful of the difference and dangers of the sex—must guard looks, words and actions, and in no moment of overwrought sympathy can the stern barriers of decorum be safely broken down. Before kissing Mr. Beecher Mrs. Moulton should have waited until he had taken that powder, until it had done its work, and the undertaker had the body ready for burial. Only in his coffin is it safe for even 'a section of the day of judgment,' in the shape of a woman, to kiss any one man in a thousand. There seems to be no room for doubt that she is, or was, a perfectly upright woman; but her childish act shows the atmosphere in which these men have been living—shows the unconscious steps by which they passed from virtue to vice—and ought to awaken all lovers of virtue to a more careful guard of her outside defenses. Chastity is not the natural condition of the race, but the very opposite, and it can only be secured by ages of culture and constant vigilence. It is a something to be acquired and maintained through grace and watchfulness, and those who open doors through which the enemy enters and causes the fall of others are responsible for their negligence and mistaken confidence."

For the Republican.

LIQUOR TRAFFIC AND RUM SELLER.

Surely a momentous subject before us for consideration. Oh! what an awful weight of misery, of woe and of poverty hang on these two words, "Liquor Traffic." I know it has been argued that the liquor traffic is a respectable and honest business. Oh, yes it is honest in the extreme I suppose, when it takes the bread from children's mouths and places it in the shape of hard earned money, in the pocket of the liquor vender. Of course it must be a respectable business that passes over the counter, that which is intended to send a man reeling along the streets like a maniac, and oft times finding a resting place in the gutter; being made even lower than the brute creation; which have neither mind or spirit. If there is one crying evil of today more manifest than another, it is just the liquor business. It may be argued in favor of the accursed traffic, that man is a free agent: he can take or he can let alone. And it is said sometimes by liquor venders, that they are very sorry to see men going to ruin, but that they cannot help it. Ah, why do they hold out the tempting bait, to the poor, weak mortal who knows there is sorrow and sometimes everlasting destruction behind it, and yet is too weak to resist the deadly draught held out to him, by the man who professes to pity him. Now can they tell me, in the face of all the arguments that have been advanced in favor the liquor traffic, of anything that has caused more misery, more sorrow, and has scattered death more generally all over the land, or has been more body and soul destroying in its power, than just the traffic in intoxicating drinks? When wars raged in "the land of the free and the home of the brave," what anxious prayers and waitings to hear the news, and, Oh! the bitter tears that were shed when a loved one had chanced to fall in battle. But see the tears, the broken hearts, and list to the groans that rise from starving families using their last strength against that fiend intemperance, that has taken from them all that they held most dear in life. See the great army of King Alcohol marching to their doom; and some to the time of double quick. And one thing is certain, they must buy and pay for their own destruction at the grog shop or in the bar-room. If there was no liquor to be had, what an Eden this country might soon become. Is it not the whiskey trade that builds and fills our jails with criminals, that erects houses of reform, crowds the penitentiaries, and causes the streets and thoroughfares to be invested with beggars and vagrants? Yes it is nothing more or less, and when will the scales fall from the people's eyes, that they may see clearly to oppose this great and terrible evil? And now we glance for a short time at the "Rum Seller." The picture is so revolting, we fain would close our eyes to the evil and, no doubt it would be easier so to do did not justice and and right demand a fair presentation. There has been a great deal said and written about the hardness of some men's hearts, the callousness of their natures and their extreme selfishness: And I think the rum seller possesses these traits of character to perfection. Who with a tender heart would take the hard earned money from a man's hands and sometimes the clothing taken from off his back, as payment for the pints and gills of poison handed to him as one means of making him lower than the brute creation? Who with a kind and susceptible nature could gaze on the effects of intemperance as caused by himself, and not be disgusted at heart with the business? To see the homes which were once the centers of affection, peace and joy, invaded and made desolate by the ravages of intemperance, and still continue to deal out the poison that ruins both body and soul, certainly shows the nature of the man. Another assumed shield of the rum sellers is, that he is licensed by government and has paid his dues. Yes, he may have paid the claims of government, he can do that with money; but how is he to settle the claims of his God? A man may be licensed by his fellow-men to spread destruction and desolation all around; but what says the word of God on this subject. "Cursed be every one that putteth the bottle to his brother's lips." As all men are brethren by creation, it is to be considered as a sweeping denunciation of the business. One may ask, "why should not I make my living and perhaps my fortune by selling liquor; there are so many engaged in the business and besides I do not force men to drink?" Well, if one man or a dozen see fit to injure themselves and their fellow men by the business, is it said that another must engage in it? Every one who quits the business but leaves the number less; and it will be a glorious era in all countries when the rum seller shall be among the missing. The excuse that they do not force men to drink is only partly true. They may not even urge men to drink, and yet to think of the men both old and young who would today be living honest and true lives free from crime, were it not for the barrooms or grog-shops in their way. It is dreadful indeed to think of the certain doom awaiting the drunkard; and when the Bible says that no drunkard can inherit the kingdom of Heaven, where, oh! where shall the rum seller go! How must he feel when called to depart this life without a preparation for eternity, and go down to eternal misery along with those he has helped to ruin. A heavier condemnation resting upon him on account of the many others he has dragged down with himself. Now the hope of the country is the rising generation and if the boys and girls of to-day, each and every one could be taught and pledged against the use of intoxicating drinks altogether what a blessed thing it would be. Let the places of the drunkard and rum seller (as they drop into their graves) be filled with sober, good, and true men. My views of this matter are that the entire annihilation of the whiskey trade depends upon the young of today. May that day soon dawn when temperance shall cover the whole land; when there shall not be found a drunkard or a drunkard-maker to mar the place or disturb the harmony of nature's laws.

A SUBSCRIBER to a South-western newspaper died recently, leaving four year's subscription unpaid. The editor appeared at the grave and deposited in the coffin a palm leaf, a linen coat, and a thermometer.

THINK how the abstraction of Sunday will enslave the working classes, with which we are identified. Think of the labor thus going on in one monotonous and eternal rack, fingers forever straining, the brow forever drooping, the loins forever aching, and the weary brain forever scheming. Think of the beauty it would efface, the merry heartedness it would extinguish, the resources of nature it would crush, the sickness it would bring, of the project it would extort, the lives it would immolate, and the cheerless graves it would prematurely dig. See them rolling and fretting, and grinding, and hewing, reaping, raising, building, digging and planting, and striving and struggling in the garden and in the field, in the granary and in the barn, in the warehouse and in the shop, in the mountain and in the ditch, on the roadside and in the country, out at sea and on shore, in the day of brightness and of gloom! What a picture the world would present if we had no Sabbath!

Scene In Court.

Question—You are not a drinking man I suppose? Answer—Well, I take a drink sometimes.

Q.—How often? A.—Sometimes twice a day, sometimes five or six times and sometimes twenty five or even fifty times a day; but no man ever saw me drunk.

Q.—Did you ever take more than fifty drinks in a day? A.—I have taken as high as seventy-five drinks a day, but I never got drunk.

Q.—When you were taking seventy-five drinks a day was that the time you were employed at this stable? A.—Yes, sir.

Q.—What kind of liquor did you drink when you drank seventy-five times a day? A.—Water.

"HE died very suddenly," said one female to another at the Post Office window in Detroit.

"And did he have his life insured?" asked the other.

"Yes—three thousand dollars."

"Oh, well, then it isn't so bad. His wife can have a coral set, some new furs, a silk dress, and enough mourning stuff to git up and wave!"

IN Wisconsin, recently, a doctor married a woman thirty-three years old, in order that she might pay his fare to Milwaukee. He then borrowed her last sixty-five cents to pay for a shave and a clean collar, and heartlessly deserted her. During the courtship he had told her that he was wealthy, and the guileless creature blindly walked into his snare.

THE Dundee Enterprise, determined to work up a circulation, throws out these glittering inducements: "We wish it distinctly understood that apples, beans, butter, cabbage, dogs, eggs, fish feed, groceries, hams, ice, jalap, kerosene, potatoes, pumpkins, saurkraut, wood or money will be taken on subscription for this paper."

WE are afraid that Maryland is doomed to Democratic vassalage for a number of years, yet. One of her college presidents says that only out of every six of the inhabitants of the State is being educated—certainly a very anti-Republican proportion.

WHAT IS VEGETINE?

It is a compound extracted from bark, roots and herbs. It is Nature's Remedy. It is perfectly harmless from any bad effect upon the system. It is nourishing and strengthening. It acts directly upon the blood. It quiets the nervous system. It gives you good sweet sleep. It is a panacea for our aged fathers and mothers, for it gives them strength, quiets their nerves, and gives them Nature's sweet sleep—as has been proved by many an aged person. It is the great Blood Purifier. It is a soothing remedy for our children. It has relieved and cured thousands. It is very pleasant to take; every child likes it. It relieves and cures all diseases originating from impure blood. Try the VEGETINE. Give it a fair trial for your complaints; then you will say to your friend, neighbor and acquaintance, "Try it; it has cured me."

RELIABLE EVIDENCE.

The following unsolicited testimonial from Rev. O. T. Walker, formerly pastor of Bowdoin Square Church, Boston, and at present settled in Providence, R. I., must be deemed as reliable evidence. No one should fail to observe that this testimonial is the result of two years' experience with the use of VEGETINE in the family of Rev. Mr. Walker's family, who now pronounce it invaluable:

PROVIDENCE, R. I., 164 TRANSIT STREET.

H. R STEVENS, Esq.:

I feel bound to express with my signature the high value I place upon your VEGETINE. My family have used it for the last two years. In nervous debility it is invaluable, and I recommend it to all who may need an invigorating, renovating tonic. O. T. WALKER, Formerly Pastor of Bowdoin Square Church, Boston.

THE BEST EVIDENCE.

The following letter from Rev. E. S. Best, the Pastor of the M. E. Church, Natick, Mass., will be read with interest by many physicians; also those suffering from the same disease as afflicted the son of E. S. Best. No person can doubt this testimony, as there is no doubt about the curative power of VEGETINE.

NATICK, MASS., Jan. 1st, 1873.

MR. H. R. STEVENS:

Dear Sir—We have good reason for regarding your VEGETINE a medicine of the greatest value. We feel assured that it has been the means of saving our son's life. He is now seventeen years of age; for the last two years he has suffered from necrosis of his leg, caused by scrofulous affection, and so far reduced that nearly all who saw him thought his recovery impossible. A council of able physicians could give but the slightest hope of his ever rallying; two of the number declaring that he was beyond the reach of human remedies, that even amputation could not save him, as he had not vigor enough to endure the operation. Just then we commenced giving him VEGETINE and from that time to the present he has been continuously improving. He has lately resumed studies, thrown away his crutches and cane, and walks about cheerfully and strong.

Though there is still some discharge from the opening where the limb was lanced, we have the fullest confidence that in a little time he will be perfectly cured.

He has taken about three dozen bottles of VEGETINE, but lately uses but little, as he is too well to be taking medicine.

Respectfully yours,
MRS. L. C. F. BEST.
E. S. BEST.

No other Bitters in the universe can equal them. I lack space for detailing the availability of these Bitters, but will briefly state its general effects upon the human system, as follows:

It absolutely Purifies the Blood. It speedily corrects all morbid changes in the Blood. It equalizes the circulation of the Blood. It regulates the supply and quality of the blood. It prepares the Blood to furnish a proper support to all the vital properties. It enriches the constituents of the Blood upon which the vital energy of the system is dependent. It infuses the proper degree of animal heat in the system. It purges from the system the morbid humors which retard its natural functions. It imparts vitality and elasticity to every organ of the body. It corrects all derangements, however trivial, which are the first origin of Disease. It promotes the operation of the digestive organs. It improves the appetite and removes all disagreeable feeling after eating. It perfects digestion, rendering it natural and easy. It acts as a mild and efficacious stomachic. It elevates the standard of all the vital forces. It strengthens the nervous fibres and diffuses a calm throughout the nervous system. It destroys all morbid conditions of the mind. It disperses dullness and languor. It banishes those clogs upon pleasure which produce gloom. It drives away those distressing symptoms which rob us of happiness. It revives the physical energies by infusing new life and power into the system. It fortifies the system against the dangers of malaria, fluctuations of the temperature changes in the climate, &c. In short, it prepares the system for the radical change to be wrought in its condition, and restores it to perfect health and natural vigor.

VINEGAR BITTERS

VEGETABLE FREE FROM ALCOHOL

PURELY D. WALKER'S CALIFORNIA

EUREKA

VINEGAR BITTERS

Dr. J. Walker's California Vinegar Bitters are a purely Vegetable preparation, made chiefly from the native herbs found on the lower ranges of the Sierra Nevada mountains of California, the medicinal properties of which are extracted therefrom without the use of Alcohol. The question is almost daily asked, "What is the cause of the unparalleled success of VINEGAR BITTERS?" Our answer is, that they remove the cause of disease, and the patient recovers his health. They are the great blood purifier and a life-giving principle, a perfect Renovator and Invigorator of the system. Never before in the history of the world has a medicine been compounded possessing the remarkable qualities of VINEGAR BITTERS in healing the sick of every disease man is heir to. They are a gentle Purgative as well as a Tonic, relieving Congestion or Inflammation of the Liver and Visceral Organs, in Bilious Diseases.

The properties of DR. WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS are Aperient, Diaphoretic, Carminative, Nutritious, Laxative, Diuretic, Sedative, Counter-Irritant, Sudorific, Alterative, and Anti-Bilious.

Grateful Thousands proclaim VINEGAR BITTERS the most wonderful Invigorant that ever sustained the sinking system.

No Person can take these Bitters according to directions, and remain long unwell, provided their bones are not destroyed by mineral poison or other means, and vital organs wasted beyond repair.

Bilious, Remittent, and Intermittent Fevers, which are so prevalent in the valleys of our great rivers throughout the United States, especially those of the Mississippi, Ohio, Missouri, Illinois, Tennessee, Cumberland, Arkansas, Red, Colorado, Brazos, Rio Grande, Pearl, Alabama, Mobile, Savannah, Roanoke, James, and many others, with their vast tributaries, throughout our entire country during the Summer and Autumn, and remarkably so during seasons of unusual heat and dryness, are invariably accompanied by extensive derangements of the stomach and liver, and other abdominal viscera. In their treatment, a purgative, exerting a powerful influence upon these various organs, is essentially necessary. There is no cathartic for the purpose equal to DR. J. WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS, as they will speedily remove the dark-colored viscid matter with which the bowels are loaded, at the same time stimulating the secretions of the liver, and generally restoring the healthy functions of the digestive organs.

Fortify the body against disease by purifying all its fluids with VINEGAR BITTERS. No epidemic can take hold of a system thus fore-armed.

Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Headache, Pain in the Shoulders, Coughs, Tightness of the Chest, Dizziness, Sour Eructations of the Stomach, Bad Taste in the Mouth, Bilious Attacks, Palpitation of the Heart, Inflammation of the Lungs, Pain in the region of the Kidneys, and a hundred other painful symptoms, are the offsprings of Dyspepsia. One bottle will prove a better guarantee of its merits than a lengthy advertisement.

Scrofula, or King's Evil, White Swellings, Ulcers, Erysipelas, Swelled Neck, Goitre, Scrofulous Inflammations, Indolent Inflammations, Mercurial affections, Old Sores, Eruptions of the Skin, Sore Eyes, etc. In these, as in all other constitutional Diseases, WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS have shown their great curative powers in the most obstinate and intractable cases.

For Inflammatory and Chronic Rheumatism, Gout, Bilious, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers, Diseases of the Blood, Liver, Kidneys and Bladder, these Bitters have no equal. Such Diseases are caused by Vitiated Blood.

Mechanical Diseases.—Persons engaged in Paints and Minerals, such as Plumbers, Type-setters, Gold-beaters and Miners, as they advance in life, are subject to paralysis of the Bowels. To guard against this, take a dose of WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS occasionally.

For Skin Diseases, Eruptions, Tetter, Salt-Rheum, Blotches, Spots, Pimples, Pustules, Boils, Carbuncles, Ringworms, Scald-head, Sore Eyes, Erysipelas, Itch, Scurfs, Discolorations of the Skin, Humors and Diseases of the Skin, of whatever name or nature, are literally dug up and carried out of the system in a short time by the use of these Bitters.

Pin, Tape, and other Worms, lurking in the system of so many thousands, are effectually destroyed and removed. No system of medicine, no vermifuges, no anthelminitics will free the system from worms like these Bitters.

For Female Complaints, in young or old, married or single, at the dawn of womanhood, or the turn of life, these Tonic Bitters display so decided an influence that improvement is soon perceptible.

Cleanse the Vitiated Blood whenever you find its impurities bursting through the skin in Pimples, Eruptions, or Sores; cleanse it when you find it obstructed and sluggish in the veins; cleanse it when it is foul; your feelings will tell you when. Keep the blood pure, and the health of the system will follow.

OUR ASSOCIATED PRESS LETTER.

PHILADELPHIA, April 21, 1875.

GEN. W. S. HANCOCK.

This distinguished soldier is being talked of as a Democratic candidate for Governor of Pennsylvania, as against Gen. Hartranft. The active and influential Democrats of this city, and those who are frequently here from all parts of the State, ridicule the idea of making Gen. Hancock Governor. In fact he is not a resident of this State; his residence is in New York, and his living there is the result of the cunning of Pennsylvania politicians. When Gen. Hancock was recalled from the far West to assume command of the department made vacant by the demise of Gen. Meade, it was his intention to make Philadelphia his head-quarters, as Meade had done, and to reside in Norristown. A dozen prominent Democratic politicians of the State met the General here in this city, and by earnestly pleading with him, persuaded him to make his home in New York, for the reason that if he remained here, the Union League would make him a Park Commissioner, which would fossilize him, and his chances for the Presidency would be pigeon-holed by that act; that if he went to New York, the commanding influence of that State, would, with Pennsylvania's aid, force his nomination for the Presidency.

Hancock took the adyice of these friends and counsellors, seven of whom were themselves aspirants for the Governorship of Pennsylvania, two for the Presidency, and nine of the number ardently desirous of being made Park Commissioners. Thus it was the politicians of Pennsylvania flanked the veteran of a hundred battles; thus it was that he has been constitutionally debarred from the Governorship of this State in order that a politician may not encounter the unquestioned popularity Hancock would have carried to the Convention.

THE EPISCOPALIAN MOVEMENT.

Since my last letter was written, the Fifth Reformed Episcopal Church, of Philadelphia, has been organized. Bishop Cummins made the address, and as the services took place within a square of my residence, I was an attendant. I am free to say I never heard a more instructive and eloquent discourse. I was completely astonished to hear the Bishop say that in the cities of Boston, New York, Baltimore, St. Louis, Cincinnati and Chicago, the daughters of communicants of the Protestant Episcopal Church, enter the confessional, and there make confession to the "priests of Protestant Episcopal Churches."

In this city the Confessional is as much a part of the form of worship at ST. CLEMENT'S Church, as reading the Apostle's creed. In other churches, remarked Bishop Cummins, the stone altars, with the crucifix and candles, have taken the place of the communion table; in these churches surpliced priests, with robed choristers, perform oblative ceremonies in manner almost identical with those performed in the Roman Catholic churches. The remarks of the Bishop created a most profound sensation, and when he observed: that he believed this American movement was God's work to meet the inroads that church is making upon the State, when she demands a division of the public funds for the purpose of giving her children a sectarian education at the expense of the State, a thrill of joy seemed to pervade the whole assembly, and a more determined set of Reformers I confess never to have seen.

AN OUTRAGEOUS LAW.

As I was about mailing this letter, a publisher came into the post-office, with a package of papers; they were weighed and found to weigh a pennyweight over two ounces. "Three cent stamp on each," was the clerk's response to the inquiry of what is the postage on them? To his question, "How much to send it through this city?" he was told by the clerk that a one cent stamp was all that was required. Three cents to send a newspaper to a friend is doubtless good for Uncle Samuel, but it is dreadful hard on those of his nephews who publish blanket sheet papers.

THE BAZAAR OF NATIONS.

This entertainment opened on the 29th of March, and will remain open until the 24th of this month. Thus far the success has been brilliant. The Director General is Mr. Howard Spenter Jones, and among the attractions he has given, is Arab Life, illustrated; a visit to Jerusalem, a New England Kitchen; Street Scenes in Paris, London, St. Petersburg, Berlin, Hong Kong, Venice, and a good many other first class places. The young ladies who represent China, and who sell so many Chinese things, are among the prettiest of the members of Mr. Jones' Church; they are mostly blondes, hence in this they are unlike the coffee-colored heathen; they wear pretty Chinese dresses and No. 2 gaiters, and in these are like the heathen Chinee; but their pig-tails. Well, their hair is done up in bangs, frizzles, puffs, coiffures, curls, and in every modern American style, but not even for the father of the Bazaar, Mr. John Wanamaker, would these pretty young ladies wear pig-tails.

From China I started for Russia, and in just 27 seconds I found myself in Moscow; here were pretty young ladies—and I pride myself upon being a judge—all dressed up in white furs, excepting their bare arms, and I don't blame them, for had Mr. Jones searched the city over, he could not have found whiter arms, plumper arms, more tapering arms, than these Moscow ladies, who will doubtless remain in Philadelphia with us, unless some of you editor men from the country run away with them. Venice takes them all down. My powers of description fail me on Venice. However, I am satisfied enough money will be raised to secure the erection of a building for the Young Men's Christian Association, that will be the grandest building of the kind in the world, in all probability.

It may interest the religious portion of your readers to know that a competitive vote is being taken at the Bazaar, on a bronze casting, to be given to Bishop Simpson, of the Methodist Church, if he receives more cash ballots than Bishop Stevens of the Episcopalian Church. The Simpson side of the list is receiving $100 worth of ballots to $10 worth for the other divine.

OUR NEW POST OFFICE.

We are building a new Post Office in this city, to cost from three to five million dollars. It is being erected on the site of the old Medical Colleges, that stood for half a century on Ninth street, below Market. One of the two buildings which yet remain to be demolished to make room for the now building, is the venerable and well-known Philadelphia Anatomical School on Chance street. This place has been used as a dissecting room for fifty years past. It is four stories high, and within its walls many deeds of blood and misery have been effected. A week since, the flesh-pits were cleaned out. It was a most disagreeable job.

These excavations were fifteen to twenty feet deep, and were filled to overflowing with legs, arms, heads and trunks of victims of the dissecting table. They had not been cleaned for fifty years, and when the bottom was reached the bones found there were so friable, that they went to dust at the touch, well illustrating the Biblical truth, "Dust thou art, to dust thou shalt return!"

John Hanlon, the villain who outraged the 6 year old child, Mary Mohrman, and then murdered her, was taken to this place in the afternoon on the day he was hung and the doctors amused themselves highly by applying electrical charges to it. Brutal murderers, and the delicately formed limbs of the fashionable young miss of 18. were tossed into this common receptacle, after the scalpel of the student had done its work. All has been dug out and hauled away as a common mass of festering humanity. Thus gain we our science of medicine; thus we learn to know ourselves. J. W. F,

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is very strongly recommended by the Medical Faculty and is largely prescribed among their Female Patients. It is worthy of all confidence, as may be seen from the following testimonials:

DR. G. B. CHAPMAN, Plattsmouth, Neb., writes: I have under treatment a lady, who, for the past seven years has been afflicted, and, after trying several physicians without receiving benefit is gaining rapidly on your Favorite Prescription.

ATLANTA, Ill.

DR. R. V. PIERCE, Buffalo, N. Y.: Dear Sir—I have not words to express my gratitude to you for your advice and assistance in my case. There is not one who has used your medicines since they have been brought here, but that can say with me they have been greatly benefited. Since I have been so helped by its use, six or seven around me left off all doctors and other medicines, and now use it in their families, after being cured of the same disease as mine. You do not know what a wonder it created in our city, by its restoring my sister I wrote you about, for she had been under the care of three of our best doctors, but could not sit up but for a few minutes. at one time. I begged of her to try your medicines, and before she had used half the bottles she could go all around the yard, and has now just come home from a visit five miles away.

MRS. THOS. MCFARLAND.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is sold by dealers in medicines generally.

——Father McGovern, of Danville was in town last week, looking hale and hearty.

——How very hard on gate loungers these moonlight nights are, did you ever notice it?

——Rev. Hiram King, of this place, preached in the Christian Association room at Lock Haven on Sunday last. Mr. King is a fine speaker.

——That little coil of snakes on the lower right corner of greenbacks will be missed hereafter, but printers wont miss them much as they don't get any greenbacks.

——One day last week our neighbor, Thomas Burnside, caught a trout which measured over 14 inches. There wasn't any noise made about that time, oh no, it was still as thunder, or near about.

——The candidates for County Superintendent of the schools are around working like beavers. The liviest rooster gets away with the worm, so it may hold good that the most energetic worker among the three candidates will get away with the most votes.

——The Altoona Morning Tribune has suspended, after an existence of two years. A want of paying advertising patronage, is announced as the cause of the suspension. The Tribune was a sprightly paper full of vim and sense, and we very much regret that it was obliged to go under.

——It is said that sitting on the ragged edge of a hemlock log fishing for trout, with wet feet, no dinner, four o'clock in the afternoon and haven't got a bite yet, and your wife at home with tooth-ache,—this is said to be a day that might safely be put down as bordering on the blue ones.

EDITOR'S TABLE.

—We have received the May number of PETERS' PARLOR MUSIC. This magasine is devoted especially to music and is a very valuable work for all lovers of that art. Published by J. L. Peters, 843 Broadway, New York, P. O. Box, 5429.

—We are indebted to Palmer & Weber, of St Louis, Mo., for a lot of music. This enterprising firm have some of the best music ever published, which they will send by mail to any part of the United States on receipt of price. They are now offering one of the most popular songs yet published, entitled, "Little Shining Silver Thread," with an elegant illuminated title page in blue and gold; price fifty cents. The following are the words.

A little shining silver thead
Lies curling on my dear one's head,
Nestling among the locks of gold;
It tells the story—"Growing old."
Her cheeks are yet as fair and bright,
Her eyes still beam with sparkling light
As when we first pledged vows of love,
Recorded then in Leaven above.

Chorus.

Oh! little shining silver thread,
Curling upon my dear one's head,
Nestling among the locks of gold,
You tell the story—"Growing old."

Oh! little shining silver thread,
You were not born when we were wed,
For on that head of classic mould
Were glorious, rippling locks of gold.
But ah! life's trouble and its care
Gave birth to that one silver hair.
And more will come, as wave on wave
The tide of life flows to the grave.—Cho.

Oh! little shining silver thread,
Your mistress must not look with dread
Upon your coming free and bold
Among the hair of waving gold;
For when your silver sisters come
To make upon that head a home,
And sprinkle it all o'er with gray,
I'll love it more than e'en to-day.—Cho.

Dear little shining silver thead,
Go tell my sweet that when youth's fled
Affection's fire will not grow cold;
I'll love the silver more than gold.
Tell her that when time's wintry ray
Will whiten all her locks with gray,
My love will melt the silvery snow,
And gave to it a golden glow.—Cho.

JOY-BELLS.—My boys and girls, you are happier than kings and queens!

There was once a prince, who, on ascending the throne, had a bell raised in a tower over his palace, which he intended to ring whenever he was perfectly happy.

The bell never rang during his lifetime.

If little children had joy-bells over their heads, what wonderful chimes we should hear when the snow-flakes fall, or the first Spring flowers are gathered.—From "Jack-in-the-Pulpit," St. Nicholas.

Published by Scribner & Co., 743 & 745 Broadway, New York, the best magazine for children published in the world.

"PETERSON'S JOURNAL OF POPULAR LITERATURE."—The May number of PETERSON, filled with fresh and delightful reading, has just been received. The Magazine leads off with a fine steel engraving, called "The Bashful Wooer," Then we have a decidedly good story, entitled "His Enemy," by Eliza Arehard. MM. Erckmann Chatrian follow with a powerfully written romance entitled "The Dean's Watch," founded upon a series of mysterious murders which took place in Heidelberg, in Germany. This is a most thrilling and effective tale, and is, of course, published. "Mr. Rochdale's Courtship" is one of those charming love stories which seem, somehow, so peculiar to this magazine. Trix and Sylvie are both delightful young ladies, and Mr. Rochdale himself is just one of the sort of many fellows whom most girls admire.

Terms: $3.00 a Year in Advance. Two Copies $5,00. Postage Prepaid. Specimen copies 25 cents. Address H. PETERSON & Co., 920 Walnut St., Philadelphia.

E. F. KUNKEL'S BITTER WINE OF IRON.

E. F. Kunkel's celebrated Bitter Wine of Iron will effectually cure liver complaint, jaundice, dyspepsia, chronic or nervous debility, chronic diarrhœa, disease of the kidneys, and all diseases arising from a disordered liver, stomach or intestines, such as consumption, flatulence, inward piles, fullness of blood to the head, acidity of the stomach, nausea, heartburn, disgust for food, fullness or weight in the stomach, sore eructations, sinking or fluttering at the pit of the stomach, swimming of the head, hurried or difficult breathing, fluttering at the heart, choking or suffocating sensations when in a lying posture, dimness of vision, dots or webs before the sight, dull pains in the head, deficiency of presperation, yellowness of the skin and eyes, pain in the side, back, head, chest, limbs, etc., sudden flushes of heat, burning in the flesh, constant imaginings of evil and great depression of spirits. Price $1 per bottle. Beware of counterfeit. Do not let your druggist palm off some other preparation of iron he may say is as good, but ask for Kunkel's Bitter Wine of Iron. Take no other. Kunkel's Bitter Wine of Iron is not sold in bulk—only $1 bottles. E. F. Kunkel, Proprietor, No. 259 North Ninth Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

Sold by Druggists and dealers everywhere.

TAPE WORM

Entirely removed with purely vegetable medicine, passing from the system alive. No fee unless the head passes. Come and refer to patients treated. Dr. E. F. Kunkel, No. 259 North Ninth Street, Philadelphia. Advice free. Seat, Pin and Stomach Worms removed. Ask your druggist for a bottle of Kunkel's Worm Syrup. Price $1 per dollar. It never fails.

It is a rare thing that physicians give any countenance to a medicine, the manufacture of which is a secret. About the only exception we know of is Johnson's Anodyne Liniment. This, we believe, all endorse, and many of them use it in their practice with great success.

Persons requiring purgatives or pills should be careful what they buy. Some pills not only cause griping pains, but leave the bowels in a torpid, costive state. Parsons' Purgative Pills will relieve the bowels and cleanse the blood without injury to the system.

WHEELER & WILSON'S SEWING MACHINES.—We call attention to the Wheeler & Wilson advertisement in our columns. This well-known Company has the most advantageous facilities for supplying the public with Sewing Machines, on as favorable terms as the business will allow. They warrant all their work, and it is a matter of importance to the purchaser to deal with a Company whose position and permanence give assurance that their guaranty will be fulfilled. They have agencies and offices throughout the civilized world, for furnishing needles, thread and other necessary supplies, and have an established reputation for reliability and fair dealing.

FINANCE AND TRADE.

GOLD 1.15

Money is reported to be in abundance in all city banks and call loans are offered at 2 per cent and prime Commercial paper is taken at 5@6 per cent.

The anthracite coal trade is in the same unsatisfactory condition; but the bituminous was never more prosperous. The Bellefonte and Snow Shoe railroad company are making large shipments and report says the company is in a more prosperous condition than ever before. The iron trade in the western part of our state is beginning to move slowly, the puddlers of Pittsburg, after a five months "strike" having gone to work at the old wages. The lumber trade does not turn out so favorable as we anticipated. We are not advised as to the number of logs put afloat, but the rafts number about eight hundred, against seventeen hundred last year. Timber is very flat at Lock Haven. The highest price attained is fifteen cents per cubic foot for best pine rafts, which brought twenty cents a year ago. Some sold as low as six cents, which brought eleven to twelve cents a year ago. Hemlock sold as low as four and a half cents per cubic foot. There has been only about six buyers at Lock Haven and on a sale amounting to twelve thousand dollars, only one dollar was realized. This is about the average proportion of cash realized on all sales.

In regard to the grain trade we have the following in regard to wheat which we copy from the New York Tribune.

GRAIN.—The activity and bouyancy that distinguished our Wheat market prior to our last, have since been even more marked, though not without considerable variableness, and at times we have to note much depression and desire to realize, the latter prompted by the fact of larger supplies by rail being near at hand. Early in the week we had very cold weather, accompanied with a severe snow storm, and the weather since has been very cold for the season, so that farm work has been greatly retarded, and it is now very evident that we are to have a backward season, and consequently a late harvest seems inevitable. Much of the country north of us is covered with snow, and is still frozen, so that farmers as a general thing have made little progress in getting in their Spring crops. We have had later and very conflicting reports from Winter Wheat sections of injury to the plant, but we are inclined to believe many of them are not well founded. It is doubtless true that much damage has been done, but it should be remembered that the area under Winter Wheat is probably larger than ever before; perhaps it would be safe to place the increase at three per cent in the Western States, and two per cent in the Atlantic States. A further injury to the plant the present month is not improbable, as the weather is very cold and unseasonable. The movement of Spring Wheat at the North-West has been quite limited thus far this month, and north of Hastings slow progress is reported in getting in the Spring seed; south of that point farmers have generally made some progress, and the country presents a more Springlike appearance. From Europe our accounts of their crops are rather more favorable, though the weather has been variable, and in France, Spain, Portugal, and a part of Belgium and Germany they are suffering considerably for the want of rain. From Russia and Austria we learn the season is backward, and the movement of Wheat to the Baltic, the Azoff, and Black Seas is very limited and farm work very backward. The quantity of Wheat now afloat for Great Britain from Oregon is 1,364,549 bushels; from California, 6,668,008, bushels; from Chili and Australia, 227,924 bushels;—together, 8,271,141 bushels, and by the last English mail we learn the quantity afloat from European ports, as made up to the 27th of March, was 430,000 qrs, or 3,440,000 bushels; to which add the quantity from the Pacific, viz: 8,275,141 bushels; to this add the quanity afloat from the Atlantic ports (embracing 20 day's shipments), some 1,452,215 bushels, and we have an aggregate of 13,152,573 bushels. This is much below the estimated probable supplies, as made up at London the latter part of February, being fully 200,000 qrs. below the estimate. The supplies of Wheat at the principal markets in the United Kingdom are very limited, far less than they expected early in March. At London they held on the 1st of April only 36,450 qrs of Wheat, the smallest stock ever known in the history of the trade; the imports into Great Britain for the month of March were about 650,000 qrs, which was far below the estimates as made up to the latter part of January; the exports from this port for the past week have been 411,118 bushels against 282,624 bushels, the corresponding week last year.

ERRORS OF YOUTH.

A GENTLEMAN who suffered for years from Nervous Debility, Premature Decay, and all the effects of youthful indiscretion will for the sake of suffering humanity, send free to all who need it, the recipe and direction for making the simple remedy by which he was cured. Sufferers wishing to profit by the advertiser's experience can do so by addressing in perfect confidence, JOHN B. OGDEN, 50 6m 42 Cedar St., New York.

DR. SCHENCK'S STANDARD REMEDIES.

The standard remedies for all disease of the lungs are SCHENCK'S PULMONIC SYRUP, SCHENCK'S SEA WEED TONIC, and SCHENCK'S MANDRAKE PILLS, and, if taken before the lungs are destroyed, a speedy cure is effected.

To these three medicines Dr. J. H. Schenck, of Philapelphia, owes his unrivalled success in the treatment of pulmonary diseases.

The Pulmonic Syrup ripens the morbid matter in the lungs; nature throws it off by an easy expectoration; for when the phlegm or matter is ripe a slight cold will throw it off, the patient has rest and the lungs begin to heal.

To enable the Pulmonic Syrup to do this, Schenck's Mandrake Pills and Schenck's Sea Weed Tonic must be freely used to cleanse the stomach and liver. Schenck's Mandrake Pills act on the liver, removing all obstructions, relax the gall bladder, the bile starts freely, and the liver is soon relieved.

Schenck's Sea Weed Tonic is a gentle stimulent and alterative; the alkali of which it is composed, mixes with the food and prevents souring. It assists the digestion by toning up the stomach to a healthy condition, so that the food and the Pulmonic Syrup will make good blood; then the lungs heal, and the patient will surely get well if care is taken to prevent fresh cold.

All who wish to consult Dr. Schenck, either personally or by letter, can do so at his principal office, corner of SIXTH and ARCH STS., Philadelphia, every Monday.

Schenck's medicines are sold by all druggests throughout the country. 10-8t

OF THEIR FAMILY MACHINES
IN USE.

A QUARTER OF A CENTURY'S TRIAL HAS DEMONSTRATED THEIR SUPERIORITY.

"WHEELER AND WILSON'S NEW NO. 6 MACHINE must eventually supersde all others now run with which it comes in competition. We recommend for it the highest reward which is in the power of the Institute to bestow."—From the unanimous Report of the five Judges of the American Institute, New York, 1874.

The Board of Managers unanimously approved the report, and recommended for this machine the Gold Medal of the Institute.

The Board of Direction unanimously approved this recommendation, and awarded the Gold Medal to Wheeler & Wilson, the only gold medal awarded for a Sewing Machine by the American Institute for many years.

The Austrian Official Report of the Vienna Exposition, pronounced it "the marvel of the Exposition," and added, "this universal machine sews the heaviest leather harness and the finest gauze with a truly pearl stitch."

The Grand Medal of Progress was awarded for it.

What the Leading Manufacturers of Boots and Shoes say of WHEELER & WILSON'S

NEW NO. 6
SEWING MACHINES.

We, manufacturers of boots and shoes, are using Wheeler and Wilson's New No. 6 Sewing Machine in all kinds of stitching on our work, and confidently believe that it will supersede all others in this branch of manufactures, for the following reason:

1. The work done by this machine is superior to that of any other in variety, amount, excellence and beauty.

2. This machine is more durable than any other of its class, requiring much less outlay for repairs and renewal of parts.

3. It does the cording or staying of button holes in a most elegant and substantial manner, without the expense of royalty.

[Signed by many.]

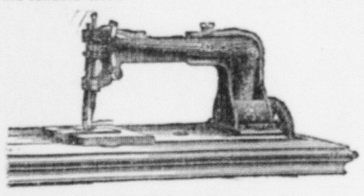
☞ It is fast superseding all other machines for leather work.



NEW NO. 7
MACHINE,

now for the first time introduced to the public, ranks in excellence with their famous No. 6 Machine, but has some modifications adapting it to special classes of work. The Tailor will find it as well suited to his work as No. 6 to leather work. It might properly be termed the Tailor's Machine.

THE ILLUSTRATED
HOUSEHOLD MAGAZINE,
WITH WHICH IS INCORPORATED
WOOD'S HOUSEHOLD MAGAZINE.

It is the intention of the conductors of this Magazine to still further make it a model of literary and mechanical excellence, and, with this view, no advantage will be neglected which either talent or capital can command to render each issue an agreeable and instructive compendium of

POPULAR READING.

Its pages will be devoted to popular literature, science, art, education and social development. Its characteristic feature is comprehensiveness. The manuscripts now on hand, and others especially engaged, embrace an usually attractive list of

DESCRIPTIVE SKETCHES OF TRAVEL,
SERIAL STORIES, TALES, POEMS,
PAPERS ON SCIENCE AND ART,
POPULAR ESSAYS, NARRATIVES,
LITERARY CRITICISMS, FASHIONS, etc.,

together with a variety of able and interesting articles upon the important Questions of the Day. A large portion of the articles, especially those descriptive of travel, will be

PROFUSELY ILLUSTRATED.

The pictorial embellishments of the Magazine hereafter constituting one of its most attractive features.

The purpose of the Publishers is to furnish a periodical which shall be instructive in THE HOUSEHOLD, THE LIBRARY and THE READING ROOM, giving an abundance of entertaining and popular literature and information for both old and young, carrying light comfort and good nature into every family, and making it acceptible for the whole Household—father and mother, boys and girls, young men and young women.

THE ILLUSTRATED HOUSHOLD MAGAZINE

includes several DISTINCT DEPARTMEMTS, each under competent and efficient management, viz:

1. SKETCHES—consisting of Descriptions of Travel and Adventure, Serial Stories, Tales and Narratives, lavishly and appropriately illustrated.
2. MISCELLANY—made up of brilliant extracts from new books, highly entertaining sketches of notable persons and things from the best Foreign Publications, Poems and Papers on Science and Art.
3. EDITORIAL DEPARTMENT—in which is given brilliant essays upon a wide range of subjects; social topics discussed and current incidents and doings glanced at.
4. FASHION DEPARTMENT—containing a resume of the Paris, London and New York Fashions, illustrated with ingraving of the latest styles.
5. LETERARY NOTES—devoted to reviews and criticisms of new books and general information.
6. CHILDREN'S DEPARTMENT—furnishes instruction and entertainment to the Boys and Girls, and those older people who have young hearts. It is embellished with high class illustrations of Natural History, Wonderful Scenery and rare incidents.
7. HOUSEKEEPER'S DEPARTMENT—comprising information and receipts, many of which are original and published for the first time all collected from the most authentic sources.

It will be the constant aim of the HOUSEHOLD PUPLISHING COMPANY to make THE ILLUSTRATED HOUSEHOLD MAGAZINE in the future, as WOOD'S HOUSEHOLD MAGAZINE has been in the past,

THE BEST DOLLAR MONTHLY PUBLISHED,

sparing neither effort, trouble nor expense in securing the BEST WRITERS as contributors, and the BEST ARTISTS to produce illustrations to enrich its pages.

AGENTS WANTED.—We require a good, FAITHFUL AGENT in every town throughout the United States and Canada, who will earnestly engage in the business of procuring subscribers—not for a few days or a month only, but permanently—with a firm determination to canvass thoroughly and carefully the entire field selected, improving every opportunity to realize all that can be made from the introduction of the Magazine.

OUR PREMIUM AND CLUBBING LISTS offer great inducements for working in our behalf. Schools and Churches have here an unusual opportunity to procure Musical Instruments from the best manufacturers, with comparatively slight exertions. Artisans, Professional Men and Students may gratify their literary tastes by ordering from the Clubbing Lists. Children may earn and own many long and desired articles by obtaining the few subscribers required.

TERMS—YEARLY SUBSCRIPTION, $1.00.

Specimen Copies mailed, post-paid, to any address upon receipt of ten cents.

The postage within the United States is Ten Cents a year, which must be forwarded with the subscription, as the new Postal Law requiring the prepayment of postage on all magazines by publishers themselves, instead of subscribers, compels us to collect the postage in advance.

Send for Circulars containing rates of commission and inducements to canvassers, and the Premium and Clubbing Lists.

READ EVERY WORD.

TO MAKE ENOUGH MONEY

In the next three months to keep you a year, any unemployed person between the ages of 16 and 60 should take an agency for THE ILLUSTRATED WEEKLY, a large, sparkling, literary and family paper, ($2,50 a year) pure, instructive, and amusing; half of its pages full of beautiful pictures, the other half containing the choicest reading matter. JAMES PARTON contributing editor. Like that great English paper, the The London News, it is highly moral, but entirely uncertain and non-political. During a year it furnishes over 1,100 pictures, and the equal of 9 large octavo volumes reading matter. IT GIVES AWAY, extra each week, a large engraving, (52 in a year), size, 17x24 inches. These are exquisite facsimiles of the finest steel engravings, on heavy tinted paper, with margins suitable for framing, and are truly a fine art galary every year. Besides, each subscriber is presented with the chromo "Gold Fish, Fruit and Flowers," size 2x2⅓ feet, in 27 oil colors, painted by Ramsey. Not only the largest and finest premium ever given, but the most wonderfully beautiful chromo ever produced. It is just the paper for which everybody has been waiting—larger and finer than any other, at half the usual cost. Its success (nearly 1000 subscribers a day being received) proves this. So complete, so progressive, so full of useful as well as entertaining matter is this paper, that we venture to assert that to every thinking, observant American, a years' subscription (costs $2.50) is, in actual, useful value, worth fifty dollars. AGENTS.—This combination is unequalled. It is instantaneous and pronounced success. Every good American takes at least one paper, of course. He takes this paper (1) it is the nicest, newest and best; (2) it is the cheapest—giving a great bargain—and thus suits the hard times. It sells itself. Be quick, if you want an agency. This time of the year any agent can make from $10 to $20 per day. Send three stamps for specimens and liberal terms, with reports from agents, subscribers, and press notices; or, better yet, to save time, send $2,50 for a complete outfit, and make $100 while you would otherwise be waiting. You are sure to take hold anyhow. Money refunded if not perfectly satisfied, or if the territory you want is already occupied. Address all orders for specimens, subscriptions, or outfits to T. E. MOORE, Publisher "The Illustrated Weekly," P. O. Box 3450, No. 11 Dey Street, New York. 11-4w

☞ NOTE.—We earnestly desire that this department of our paper shall be made as useful as possible to our Agricultural friends, and therefore extend a cordial invitation to all parties interested, to favor us with contributions. THE LAST MILESTONE.

Sixty years through shine and shadow,
Sixty years, my gentle wife,
You and I have walked together
Down the rugged road of life,
From the hills of spring we started,
And through all the summer land
And the fruitful autumn country
We have journeyed hand in hand.

We have borne the heat and burden,
Toiling painfully and slow;
We have gathered in our harvest,
With rejoicing, long ago.
Leave the uplands for our children,
They are strong to sow and reap.
Through the quiet winter lowlands
Our own level we may keep.

'Tis a dreary country, darling,
You and I are passing through,
But the road lies straight before us,
And the miles are short and few;
No more dangers to encounter,
No more hills to climb, dear friend,
Nothing now but simple walking
Till we reach our journey's end.

We have had our times of gladness;
'Twas a proud and happy day,
Ah! the proudest of our journey.
When we felt that we could say—
Of the children God had given,
Looking fondly on the ten,
"Lovely women are our daughters,
Our sons are noble men."

We had our time of sorrow,
And our time of anxious fears,
When we could not see the milestones
Through the blindness of our tears.
In the sunny summer country,
Far behind us, Little May,
And our Willie, too, grew weary,
And we left them on the way.

Are you looking backward mother,
That you stumble in the snow?
I am still your guide and staff, dear,
Lean your weight on me, so!
Our road is growing narrow;
And what is it, wife you say?
Yes, I know our eyes are dim, dear,
But we have not lost the way.

Cheer thee! Cheer thee! faithful hearted,
Just a little way before,
Lies the great Eternal City
Of the King that we adore.
I can see the shining spires,
And the King, the King, my dear;
We have served him long and humbly
He will bless us, do not fear.

Ah! the snow falls fast and heavy;
How you shiver with the cold:
Let me wrap your mantle closer,
And my arm around you fold.
We are weak, and faint, and weary,
And the sun's low in the west;
We have reached the gates, my darling,
Let us tarry here and rest.

The Universe of God.

Far back in the gloomy past, beyond the reach of human sight; "when the morning stars united in harmonious song, and the angels of God shouted for joy around His heavenly throne;" the universe was the busy workshop of the Almighty in which was presented the changes of creation and decay. The Supreme Author of the universe, high exalted in the heavens, surveys, with Omnicient eye, the vast structure of the universe of God. He calls forth from the abyss of darkness myriads of worlds, and sets them in grand and ceaseless revolution throughout the regions of immensity. Suns are brought into existence, cast their rays of golden light around them and dispel the darkness from the face of Nature; then wane and pass on to their setting place, while eternity, with all its mysteries and wonders, like the mighty ocean, rolls onward with unceasing flow. With what powerful force does the thought strike the soul as we stand at midnights dreary hour, and gaze among the shining orbs of Heaven—that thus for unceasing ages Omnipotence has continued to control the armies of the sky and direct the works of His hands. We, of small capacity and limited understanding, in the covetous cases and selfish interests of life, are inclined to regard our earth as the last offer of human existence—the only centre of life intelligence. We conceive of God as having very limited views even in the creation of the universe and of man; we conceive Him as having bestowed life and intelligence—the richest boon of Heavenly gift—only upon the insignificant race that inhabits the earth, while all the vastness of his great dominions remains uninhabited and void, where darkness and eternal silence only reigns and no human voice is heard to break the unutterable silence that there prevails. Yet if we could but break the spell of vision by which our mortal sight is bound, might we not then behold the heavenly worlds peopled with countless numbers of intelligent beings, actively engaged in the busy scenes of life? How delightful the thought that in those far off worlds perchance, dwell a people who have never yet incurred the wrath of an angry God, but whose years are crowned with happiness and peace untarnished with misery and sin.

How overwhelming is the thought that the universe is unbounded in extent! that myriads are joined to myraids, and yet no end is visible; where worlds on worlds arise to the very vestible of Him who rides upon the circles of eternity, and stretch away in endless perceptive until the mind is lost in vain endeavors to comprehend the awful majesty of Him who created and governs so vast an empire.

How to Estimate the Profits of a Farm.

The farmer lives in his own house. The use of the house, which he does not pay far, is as much a part of his income as the money which a salaried man pays for rent, is of his, and should be counted as such in an estimate of the profit of the farm. All things produced on the farm and consumed on the farmer's table, including the vegetables from the garden, the eggs and milk used in cooking, are as much a part of his income as the money paid for such things out of his salary is of the salaried man. If a farmer gives his wife and children a pleasant ride to town, using his own horses and wagon, the value of their use is part of his income from his farm, as truly as the money the other man pays out of his salary for carriage hire is of his. The correct rule for estimating the income from a farm is substantially this: Give credit for every article produced, used or expended in any way whatever, no matter how small in value, as well as for cash received for products sold, and for increase in the value of farm property, and charge against the farm for interest on capital invested, and for all expenditures. The farmer that will do this from year to year, will not so much feel like complaining of the unprofitablenesss of farming as compared with other pursuits. The fact is that not one in a hundred farmers take into consideration the luxury and comforts of fresh eggs, butter, milk, fruits, etc., that they would have to pay high prices for if they lived in towns, or do without them.

Farm Ornaments.

An exchange says we must protect emphatically against the practice of expending all the taste, time and adornment on a front yard. The outlook from the rear window of a home should be as gratifying as from the front. The exit from the rear of the house should be as compensating as the entrance from the front.

We want the inside of the platter clean as well as the outside. And the same harmonious system should extend to every field on the farm. Vines should clamber over outhouses, old stumps and all uncouth objects that cannot be removed, even though the vines be nothing but hop or woodbine.—Groups of evergreens, or deciduous trees or shrubs should screen and seclude the indispensable appurtenances of a farm which are in themselves necessities.

Groups of trees in every field are not only profitable—albeit they do shade the grain somewhat—but break up the monotony, and relieve the eye and the heart of the husbandman, as well as afford animals protection from sun and storm.

VARIETIES.

Poor men and hens are obliged to scratch to get along in this world.

"Here's another doughmestic difficulty," said a Brooklyn woman as she found her bread heavy.

Josh Billings says that in the beds of many hotels "you sleep some, but roll over a good deal."

A book has been published called "Half-Hours with Insects." The author was not a regular boarder.

Switzerland has a cremation society. When the first meeting is held all the members will doubtless be ready to go to Berne.

"I am a broken man," sighed a dilapidated author. "I should think so, for I've seen your pieces," responded a bystander.

An uncle left eleven silver spoons to his nephew in his will, adding, "He knows the reason I have not left him the whole dozen."

"What a contradictory thing a barometer is," said Spiggens. "How so?" asked Wiggins. "Because the higher you take it the lower it gets."

An Ohio man has been snatched from a drunkard's grave eighty-nine times. Since the election he's been going on as if he wanted to be snatched some more.

"George, dear, don't you think it is rather extravagant of you to eat butter with that delicious jam?" "No love economical! Same piece of bread does for both!"

"Oh! I've loved before," said a Detroit woman to her fourth husband, as she took a handful of hair from his head because he objected to hang out the week's washing.

There is a farm house in Lochgoin, Scotland, over the door of which is an inscription bearing the date 1178. The present occupant of the farm is the 38th of his name that has held the farm—the family having dwelt there for 38 generations—that is ever since the 8th century.

Friction impedes the progress of the railway train, and it is only through friction that it makes any progress. This apparent paradox is explained when we remember that by reason of the frictional "bite" of the drivers upon the track they draw the train. The bearings of the wheels upon the rails are a mere line where they come in contact, iron and iron, yet this slight and almost imperceptible hold is sufficient to move hundreds of tons dead weight with the speed of the wind.

An English custom of "Afternoon Tea" has been adopted in Paris, and the hour fixed at five p. m. Tea is not served on a silver waiter by a servant, but a neat little table or etagere stands before each guest. On the top is a place for a cup, and under the first shelf another for biscuits or sandwiches.

A recent writer says that corpulency is not a disease. The founder of the English Church was a fat man, Luther was a corpulent; Napolean I., though his carriage was erect and soldierly, had much adipose tissue about him; Bryon was inclined to corpulency, as were most of the literary worthies of the Elizabeth era. So if corpulency is a disease, it certainly has not a bad effect on the brain.

A very good old book teaches us by parable, that the man who hid his talent in a napkin did not do well. How will those merchants succeed who hide their capital, their business and themselves from all who do not, by mere chance, enter their stores? It is easy for a business man to speak out for himself in the newspaper; and by means of it he can speak regularly, often, and to the point. Why do so many of us hide our talents away instead of increasing them to ten talents, which we are taught to look upon as the increase we should receive from our good gifts, if we pay them sufficient respect and treat them properly.

The Scientific American describes a strange fertilizer. At Stratford, Connecticut, where mosquitoes are as thick as fog, lives an ingenious Yankee, so they say—believe it who may—who puts the insects to profitable uses. He has invented a large revolving scoopnet, covered with lace, which is put in motion by a wind-mill, water power or steam. The upper half moves through the atmosphere, and at each rotation draws an immense number of the "squitoes" down into the water, where they drown and sink to the bottom. Every revolution of the net draws in an ounce of mosquitoes, or a ton for thirty thousand turns of the machine. The mosquitoes thus collected make a splended manure for the land, worth forty-five dollars a ton.

HALL'S

VEGETABLE SICILIAN HAIR RENEWER.

Every year increases the popularity of this valuable Hair Preparation, which is due to merit alone. We can assure our old patrons that it is kept fully up to its high standard; and it is the only reliable and perfected preparation for restoring GRAY OR FADED HAIR to its youthful color, making it soft, lustrous, and silken. The scalp, by its use, becomes white and clean. It removes all eruptions and dandruff, and, by its tonic properties, prevents the hair from falling out, as it stimulates and nourishes the hair-glands. By its use, the hair grows thicker and stronger. In baldness, it restores the capillary glands to their normal vigor, and will create a new growth, except in extreme old age. It is the most economical HAIR-DRESSING ever used, as it requires fewer applications, and gives the hair a splendid, glossy appearance. A. A. Hayes, M.D., State Assayer of Massachusetts, says, "The constituents are pure, and carefully selected for excellent quality; and I consider it the BEST PREPARATION for its intended purposes."

Sold by all Druggists and Dealers in Medicines.

Buckingham's Dye.
FOR THE WHISKERS.

AT PRIVATE SALE.

A valuable farm containing 215 acres, situate within one mile of Milesburg, and three miles of Bellefonte, at the junction of the Bald Eagle Valley and Snow Shoe railroads, near the depot, Schools, Churches, Post office, Mills, etc. The lands are FREE from STONE, level, well fenced, and under a good state of cultivation. A valuable vein of

LIME STONE ROCK

is on the farm, and a village is growing up around it, which gives a fair prospect of an increase in value before long. The Philipsburg turnpike runs through it for a distance of ¼ of a mile rendering a large strip on each side available for house lots, from which the entire price of the farm might be realized, lots having sold heretofore for $100 apiece. The farm is well watered, having water in all the fields, good wells at the house and barn with pumps all in good order. There also are 50 acres of good

PINE AND OAK TIMBER.

The land has a southern exposure and is therefore very early. There are two houses on the farm, both facing the turnpike. One containing five rooms on the first floor with Hall and five on the second and back Kitchen, with room over-head. Connected with this house is a good log barn, ice house and other out buildings. On the other side of the road is the other house containing eight rooms with good barn and out buildings. This farm could be divided into two parts, and will be if purchasers so desire, making one containing 130 acres with the large house, and the other containing 35 acres with the small house. Terms easy. Inquire of James L. Sommerville, or R. T. Downing, or at the office of the Bellefonte REPUBLICAN.

CHEROKEE REMEDY.

THE GREAT INDIAN DIURETIC.

INFINITELY SUPERIOR TO BUCHU.

Nine tenths of the human family suffer, directly or indirectly, at one time or other, from diseases or irregularities of the generative system, while the victims of indiscretion, and of quack treatment, are comparatively numerous.

The idea that patients cannot treat themselves successfully in these cases, has long ago been exploded. A good and reliable medicine, prepared by an experienced physician, from the original Indian Recipe, that is guaranteed to effect a can be as safely relied upon as the prescription of the most skillful practitioner. Such a medicine is the celebrated

CHEROKEE REMEDY.

Full directions accompany each bottle, and if they are carefully followed, a quick and permanent cure is guarranteed. Price $2.00 per bottle.

THE CHEROKEE INJECTION,

should always be used in conjunction with the Remedy for both incipient and obstinate cases of Gonorrhœa. Price $2.00 per bottle.

CHEROKEE CURE

for seminal weakness (spermatorrhœa), is a simple vegetable medicine that was used for many years in the practice of the physician who first gave the remedy to the public. It has effected cures that would scarcely be credited except on ocular evidence of the fact. Full directions, with pamphlet containing all particulars of symptoms, treatment, &c., accompany each bottle. Price $2.00 per bottle. Sold everywhere.

CHEROKEE PILLS.

These Pill are prepared expressly for the cure of those irregularities to which ladies are subject, and will be found safe, reliable and effectual, for the cure of Suppression, Green Sickness, Pain in the Back, Hysteria, Sick Headache, &c., &c. Price $1.00 per box.

Heimstreet's Hair Restorative,

OR INIMITABLE HAIR COLORING.

NOT A DYE.—Heimstreet's "Hair Coloring is not a Dye, and its operation is not by any chemical effect, but by a natural restoration of the glands, thus giving the hair the color it originally had.

NATURALNESS.—When the hair is dyed, its color is leaden hued and unnatural, but when restored by HEIMSTREET'S HAIR COLORING, its appearance is so perfectly natural that no one can detect the use of any Restorative.

STAINLESS.—While the Restorative acts promptly on the hair, it leaves no stain or mark whatever on the skin. It is composed of ingredients that form a perfect dressing as well as a coloring, so that no oils, &c., are necessary.

THIS MOST EFFECTIVE of all the Hair Restorers is for sale by all druggists at 50 cents and $1.00 per bottle. Numerous certificates from those who have used it are in the possession of the proprietors.

TAR.—The wonderful healing properties of Tar when united with the other ingredients, render PARK'S BALSAM the most efficient Cough Medicine ever offered to the public.

CONSUMPTION.—The many cases of Consumption that have been cured justify us in the assertion that it is the very best medicine for that disease ever discovered.

CERTIFICATES OF CURES.

STEPHEN FISK, of New York, says his daughter had consumption, and terbucles had formed in her lungs. He was induced to try Park's Balsam, which effected a speedy cure.

EGYPTIAN
Rat and Vermin Destroyer

FOR EXTERMINATING RATS, MICE, WATER BUGS, ROUCHES, RED ANTS, &c.

STRENGTH.—When a Rat tastes the Egyptian Destroyer, his death warrant is signed, sure. It cannot fail to kill. It also creates great thirst, and the rat will search for water out of doors, and not die in his hole, to cause a stench that cannot be got out.

ATTRACTIVENESS.—Rats are the shrewdest of vermin. It is hard to get them to eat poison. An ingredient in the Egyption Destroyer is a perfect bait, and they are attracted rather than frightened be it. "Rats (not children) cry for it.

KEEPING SOFT.—People know how the ordinary Rat Pastes dry up and become useless, causing annoyance and loss. The Egyptian Destroyer is fully warranted to keep soft, fresh and effective in any climate for years.

SURE DEATH.—The Egyptian Destroyer kills every time. Hundreds of unsolicited testimonials are now in the hands of the proprietors, substantiating its great merits as the best preparation for destroying Vermin in the world. Be sure and ask for the "Egyptian," and take no other.

MEDICAL.

Wright's Rejuvenating Elixer.

For the restoration of Nature's forces. It gives new life and vigor to the aged, and causes the blood of youth to course through the veins. It effectually cures Impotency, Palpitation of the Heart, Loss of Muscular Power, Low Spirits, Disorganization of the Generative Organs, and all the train of ills that follow in the path of the transgressor of Nature's laws. Price $2 per bottle.

It will be readily understood that in the brief space afforded by the advertising columns of a public print, it is impossible to give all particulars of the diseases that may be cured by the CHEROKEE MEDICINES. That they are destined to become immensely popular is plainly obvious in consequence of their

GREAT INTRINSIC MERIT.

The pamphlet and circulars that accompany the medicines give all the information which cannot be given here, and the remedies may be had of any respectable druggist.

ELAINE
AS AN ILLUMINATOR.
WHY IT IS THE SAFEST.

ELAINE will not explode while burning in a lamp, nor in any other way, as it does not contain any of the explosive compounds so frequently met with in the ordinary oil for illuminating. A lamp, filled with ELAINE, if upset or accidently broken, will not explode or burn. There is no position in which you can put a lamp filled with ELAINE, for common use, in which it will explode. As no other illuminator has such advantages of safety, ELAINE IS CERTAINLY THE SAFEST FAMILY ILLUMINATING OIL KNOWN.

——In the Council Bluffs, Iowa, "Nonpareil" of March 30th, we find the following obituary notice of one who was formerly a resident of Pennsvalley, and whom many of our readers may recollect: At half past one o'clock on Monday afternoon, Mrs. Emily Keatly, relict of the late James Gregg Keatly, Esq., of Centre county, Pa., died of apoplexy and paralysis at the residence of her son, Col. John H. Kealty, of this city. The deceased, in 1866, with her two younger sons, emigrated to Iowa, and settled at Cedar Falls, thence, in 1872, she came to Council Bluffs, where, with her youngest son, she made her home up to the time of her death.

THE SPELLING BEE ON FRIDAY EVENING.—Last week we announced that the orthomania had reached Bellefonte, and that some of the ladies of the M. E. church had arranged for the contest to come off on Friday evening, the 16th inst. The contest came off, and it was the occasion of the season. Miss M. Adele Kenny, of Philadelphia, who is at present visiting her brother-in-law, Mr. Bond Valentine, and Mrs. William V. Hughes, took the responsibility of arranging the preliminaries. They did their work promptly and efficiently and the success of the Bee is due largely to their efforts. The proceeds, amounting to something over one hundred dollars, have been appropriated to the fund for building the new M. E. Church.

Before eight o'clock, the spacious auditorium of Reynold's Hall, which was kindly tendered to the ladies, free of charge, by Mr. Thomas R. Reynolds, was filled to repletion. Every seat was occupied, and the people spent some little time in buzzing, giving one another hard words to spell, and in exercising their risibilities for the anticipated fun.

AT EIGHT O'CLOCK precisely, the audience was called to order by D. H. Hastings, who stated that the exercises of the evening would consist of nothing more nor less than an old fashioned spelling school, and that in order to proceed regularly he would entertain a motion for President of the evening. Mr. S. S. Lyon moved to elect his Honor, Judge Orvis, and the assembly accorded unanimously, whereupon the Farmer Judge rose up and strode threateningly along the aisle, to the entrance of the stage, and soon appearing among the scenery, took a seat behind a stand and a dictionary, after which he announced that he was ready to receive bids. A. O. Furst, Esq., was nominated for Vice Pres't, by a venerable, grayheaded orthographer, who imagined that trouble might arise and he wanted able counsel. Mr. Furst's appearance on the stage was greeted with applause, but he laid his hand complacently on the dictionary and located on the right of the Judge. To provide for the worst, the same elderly gentleman above alluded to also nominated Doctor Geo. F. Harris for Vice President, and the latter, lance in hand, and wearing a business like smile, took his station and immediately transferred the dictionary from the table to his lap. Then he began to hunt up jaw breaking words. Hon. P. Gray Meek, of the "Watchman," and Mr. Robert P. Tuten, of the REPUBLICAN, were chosen Secretaries and two more flowers were added to the bouquet around the stand. D. H. Hastings moved to elect Messrs. J. Wesley Gephart and J. Mason Duncan, Captains, to choose and command the two opposing classes. They were elected, and taking their places at either side of the stage, like end men, the business of calling out the forces began.

THE CLASSES, as marshaled by their respective leaders, were as follows:

J. W. Gephart, Capt.	J. M. Duncan, Capt.
Beckie McGinley	Jennie Gehret
Molly Nesbit	Cecelia Sternberg
Lizzie Campbell	Alicia McCafferty
Annie Williams	Maggie Shaffer
Lizzie Forster	Annie Rankin
Clara Lyon	Mary Morgan
Effie Straub	Sally McGinley
P. J. Hamilton	Rosa Woods
James Harris	Mrs. J. P. Hughes
H. A. McClure	D. S. Keller
Dr. R. L. Dart	John Curtin
W. W. Montgomery	John G. Love
S. S. Lyon	Harry Orbison
Jasper Williams	James Leydon
Rev. J. P. Hughes	W. F. Reber
Henry Herman	W. S. Wagner
Wm. P. Duncan	W. L. Malin

Besides the above named contestants, there were a number of persons called for by the captians who did not respond. They comprise the following

SICK LIST:

J. L. Spangler was sick and scared, and did not come forward. Joe. W. Furey was loudly called for, but his eye sight was impaired and he couldn't see it; he preferred to enjoy the fun as a private citizen. "Charles McCafferty" shouted the captain, whereupon the aforesaid gentleman arose and started down the aisle; but he suddenly remembered that the morrow was payday, and sinking into a seat, began to cipher in a pass book. Isaac Mitchell was the next man called, but his back bone lacked the necessary collateral, and the call went to protest. Miss Lauderbach was scared and wouldn't go. Frank P. Blair's liver was out of order, and Harry Hicks was conveniently absent when his name was called. Mr. E. C. Humes was badly scared and hadn't confidence in himself. Rev. Miller thought he'd rather not, and Rev. Lilly was too much scared. Captain Barger would like to have responded but was scared. George H. Weaver was so hard of hearing that he couldn't hear the captain, although his name was sounded loud enough to rattle the windows. D. F. Fortney was neither sick nor scared, but he wouldn't leave his girl. John I. Potter had just returned from Snow Shoe and felt tired and scared. Col. W. W. Brown was returned non est inventus, while Alfred Nichols and W. M. Holmes were, like the Pennsylvania malitia, under cover, and out of danger. Here the sick list ended, and the sides were declared complete. D. H. Hastings, the pedagogue, announced the rules for the governing of the spelling, also stating that the list of words to be given, had been prepared by Miss Adele Kenny, and that, as he had not seen them before, he would be beyond suspicion in the matter of granting dictionary favors to any one. The judges were provided with a copy of the list and would see that the words would be given out in a regular order, so that justice might be done though the spellers should fall. He also stated that, as he had no time to examine the words, mistakes in pronunciation might occur, but was willing to trust to Providence and popular indulgence.

"ALL READY"

was sounded and the spelling began. The first few words were rather easy, and a dozen or more were passed before a sunny-faced little girl spelled persistence with an a in the last syllable, then a cloud overcame her countenance and everybody was sorry for her lapsus lingua. W. S. Wagner attempted to spell pugilistic, and, although he handled the word in an able-bodied manner, he knocked two l's into the middle of it, and an E-flat horn somewhere in the recesses of the stage struck up the "Camp Town break down," and the gentleman retired amidst uproarious applause. Mr. Harry Herman put two p's in sympathetically, and when informed of his mistake he remembered of but one p; a dispute followed, in the midst of which the horn gave forth a sympathetic blast and Mr. H. retired, but was heard from again as the subsequent proceedings will show. Miss Clara Lyons thought enunciation began with an i, and the horn gave the alarm. The words as prepared on the list up to this point, were arranged so as to make the following sentences: "Welcome, audience! Many thanks. Proceeds, benefit Methodist Episcopal church. Success! Future, sanguine. Persistence necessary. Perceiving interest manifested. Entertainment commenced. Contestants, regulations recollect. Pugilistic exhibitions discountenanced. Uproarious merriment instantaneously checked. Reasonable risibility allowable. Subjugated colleagues sympathetically anatomized. Lenient judgment importuned. Combating orthoepists, inefficacious competitors, acquiescing decorously, magnanimously animadverted. Enunciation, pellucid—witticisms obnoxiousness. Menagerie heralded!

As soon as it was understood that the menagerie was heralded, the animals began to make a noise, Mr. S. S. Lyon, attacking a kaleidoscope, leaving the o out of the middle of it and setting his tooth on an a. His leonine voice was soon drowned in the strains of the Camp Town break down and the roars of the audience, while the unfortunate gentleman gally skipped to the rear. J. W. Gephart, had a struggle with combating, using two t's instead of one, but gave up the struggle and stepped around the furniture. It was afterwards learned that combating is pronounced with the accent on the ante-penult, but the pedagogue laid the stress on bat; if the word had been properly pronounced it is likely that Mr. Gephart would have seen more service in the war of words. A young lady produced the following combination,—degeoaurwotype, but the judges said the negative was bad and she was retired. Dr. R. L. Dart, thought macaroni was spelled macerona and was soup-erannuated. W. F. Reber, Deputy Prothonotary, could not spell colander and he started for his office to issue a scire facias to show cause why it was not spelled collendor. W. W. Montgomery dressed up allopathy with an o after the p, but the judges decided that the clothes didn't fit and Mr. M. stepped down and out. The venerable John Curtin made the last part of idiosyncrasy sound like quincy and both he and the revered George Washington passed in their checks from the same disease and the bugle sounded a requiem. John G. Love in attempting to spell cicatrization learned that the post of honor was the private station. W. L. Malin, the telegraph operator was convinced he was better at 'girken' lightning than spelling gherkin pickles. An Academy boy thought that croshia spelled crochet, and Harry Linn didn't seem to care a picayune if he did spell it picaune. Rev. James P. Hughes received naphtha, but like a kind husband he confided it to his wife who stood in front of him. This lady spelled it naptha, but she did it so pleasantly that the horn didn't even sound as she passed to a seat. A young aspirant for dictionary honors suddenly checked his career by using an f instead of ph in ephemeral. Jasper Williams tackled phosphorescence and got as far as phorfor—when the bugle alarmed him and he floated away like a Will-iam-o'-the-wisp. James Harrit refused to spell misogyny because he'd been loving the women for the last fifty odd years—he isn't one of the other kind. Mary Morgan was not expected to spell niece, because she never had any; she put the i where e ought to be. Lizzie Forster was of Noah count when she put two e's in antediluvian. Spelling it paradyme instead of paradigm robbed the ranks of Celia Sternberg. Maggie Shaffer dropped one m in pommel and the audience was sorry, because she had spelled right bravely up to that time. Miss Beckie McGinley was frozen out on gelid, and Lizzie Campbell, whom we had hoped would carry off a prize, failed, in substituting raciosination for ratiocination. Wm. P. Duncan put an s instead of the first t in insentient and the subsequent proceedings interested him no more. Amidst much applause, and to the music of the Camp Town break down, he marched out of sight, hiding among the scenery. At this point there were but ten contestants left and the interest was growing with every word given. P. J. Hamilton spelled filactory as we have written it and chassezed to the rear much to the evident regret of everybody. He had struggled through a particularly hard lot of words and is an excellent speller. D. S. Keller did not know what a manikin is and sandwitched an a in the middle of it and gave an ocular demonstration of the word, while the judges searched the authorities. The latter finally decided that Mr. K. had properly spelled the name of a bird, and he kept his place in the class. Miss Rosa Woods felt tired and wanted to sit down, so she put two l's in holograph. The Camp Town break down was resumed when Miss Mollie Nesbitt left out one l in severally. Professor Hughes didn't have two c's in desiccate and he retired to ponder. Miss Jennie Gehret was dumfounded to learn that dumbfounded is incorrect, and so were many others. Miss Gehret stood the fire for a long time and left only five behind. Harry Orbison lost his chances for the champion's belt when he substituted sir. single for surcingle. Mr. J. Mason Duncan had been up to snuff all along till he came to the Rappee brand; this was a sneezer and caused the horn to blow. Only a trio of spellers now remained. The words came in rapid succession but they spelled them bravely. Some of them contained more silent letters than the tomb stones of an aristocratic cemetery, others were long enough to prop a clothes line, and the rest have been known to bring on lock jaw. Finally, however, Mr. Keller put a c for the last t in sentential, after a while Miss Annie Rankin said Philip for fillip and like the snap of your finger was out of sight. This left Miss Nannie T. McGinley alone in her glory—the modest, winsome, self-possessed champion of the evening. She and Miss Rankin are both students of the Academy, and are remarkably bright in other branches as well as in orthography. Prof. Hughes may well be proud of them. This closed the contest.

Mr. Hastings stated, that if there were any persons in the audience who thought they could improve on the class just closed out, that they would be favored with an opportunity to have the conceit taken out of them. Mr. Harry Herman, who had the dictionary distemper badly, advanced to the stage, and, stepping before the foot-lights, stated, in an excited manner, that he had spelled his word correctly and demanded satisfaction, which the judges proceeded sympathetically to give him. He formed himself into a class and desired to be interviewed. The first word given him was osier, but he spelled it with a z, and the orchestra in thundering tones sounded the final notes of the Camp Town break down, while Mr. H. returned to his seat below, a sadder but a more satisfied man.

His Honor, Judge Orvis, then awarded the prizes as follows:

1st prize—Miss Nannie T. McGinley. Webster's new unabridged dictionary.

2d prize—Miss Annie Rankin. A valuable volume entitled, Parnassus.

3d prize—D. S. Keller. An elegant gold tooth-pick.

Thus closed the exercises of the evening. All were pleased, and tired of laughing.

——There is a good deal of excitement in the country at the present time. There are the elections we have just been reading, the Beecher scandal which seems to have no end, the Black Hills sensation, the miners' strike, to keep which in bounds it is necessary to call out the troops, spelling bees agitating the minds of everybody, young and old all over the country, but the most important thing, that which is of more real interest to the people of this section, is the fact that Sechler & Co., in the Bush House Block, have the finest groceries, in the country; and everything in the line can be purchased at this store at less prices, than can be had at any other store in the county. No matter what you ask for you can get it at Sechler & Co's. It is not just ordered, or on the way, or expected on yesterday, as is the case at most places. No sir, there it is an endless quantity, pure and fresh, and so cheap that you are astonished when told the prices. Don't fail to call a Sechler & Co's, it is the place for groceries.

PASSOVER.—The Hebrew feast of Pesach, (Passover) began on the evening of the 19th inst. This is the celebration of the emancipation of Israel from Egyptian bondage, and is almost universally observed by Israelites on every part of the globe.

——What a wonderful excitement these spelling schools are making. It's funny to see what easy words are missed. Correctly is not a hard word to spell yet there are a great many who cannot spell correctly.

——In Huntingdon Ex-Senator Scott, Ex-Congressmen Speer and Ex-Representative Blair took part on the Spelling Match, on Friday evening. The two latter went down on chrysolite, Mr. Scott, succumbed and phthisic.

——Joy to the afflicted, the celebrated Dr. A. C. Jackson, will be at Garman's Hotel, in this place on Saturday, Sunday, and Monday, April 24, 25, and 26. The great experience of Dr. Jackson and his wonderful success with all diseases, cannot fail to inspire the public with the utmost confidence in him. He uses no alcoholic, or mineral poisons in his practice whatever. We would most earnestly advise all who are afflicted, especially with diseases of long standing, to call on the Doctor on the above days, at the time mentioned.

——There is a man in this place who is very superstitious. On last Saturday evening he was coming out from behind a shed on a back street, when a cross, snappish dog flew at him and labored very industriously for some minutes to bite him. The man whilst endeavoring to prevent the animal from biting him, kept dodging about quite lively and when in the act of kicking the exasperating canine into sometime in the future, he accidentally stumbled and rolled over an ash barrel. In getting up he discovered the moon over his left shoulder; this he considered very unlucky, he fairly bowled with rage; then he went for that cur. He stoned him and clubbed him and cursed him. We candidly believe that man could have died happy that night if he could have reduced the dog tax of this place one-half or even one-fourth. He felt dogged miserable, he did.

——When we see a man with a face all besming with smiles, when he has a good word for everybody, when he looks upon the bright side of everything, when the world appears to him a perfect paradise, when he delights in the music of the birds, the budding and blooming of the trees, the rippling of the waters, when no discordant sounds are permitted to awaken feelings of sadness within him, or cause a wave of sorrow to roll across his peaceful breast, when peace and happiness is pictured upon his countenance, and the sunlight of a joyous heart is seen to twinkle in his eyes, 'tis then we know that man is the happiest of earthly mortals, and yet all men can be the same, the secret of it all is: Just buy your groceries at the mammoth store of S. These gentleman represent some of very best and safest companies in existence among which are the Franklin of Phil'a Lycoming of Muncy, Metropolitan Life of N. Y., and some eight or ten others, whose popularity is accounted for by the prompt, satisfactory manner of adjusting all claims. ——A man named Parker who lives near Beech Creek attempted to get on the cars at Milesburg, on Saturday last, when he slipped and fell, and the wheel of one of the trucks passed over his foot crushing it badly. Had the foot at the time been resting on the rail instead of the ties, it would probably have been cut off, or mangled so badly as to have rendered amputation necessary. Mr. Parker will perhaps hereafter keep his head more clear, in order that his foot may clear the track when the train comes along.

——In our account of the Spelling-bee, we failed to mention the 4th prize, of an Osgood's Elementary Primer, awarded to W. S. Wagner for being one of the first spelled down. ——For a real genuine rip-tearing winter's day last Saturday filled the bill in every particular. It snowed and it blowed and froze and caused people to say hard things and shiver, and look blue, and set by the stove, and growl about things they would never have thought of on pleasant day.

——If those urchins who flew around and peddled bills, wheeled trunks, lifted boxes and did other work to enable them to get into the show last week would show as much determination in other and more useful pursuits nothing could prevent them from coming out ahead.
